Pennsylvania Residents Favor Farm Preservation

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 70 percent of Pennsylvania residents believe farmland preservation should be given a higher priority in the 1990s, according to a public opinion survey conducted by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Citizen concern over the loss of agricultural land has grown as businesses, beltways, residential developments, and shopping malls have spread into rural areas," said Dr. Stanford Lembeck, associate professor of rural sociology.

Between 1982 and 1987, the number of farms in Pennsylvania fell by 4,000 and farmland declined by 431,000 acres, according to the 1987 U.S. Census of Agriculture. Concern over commercial and residential development and suburban sprawl prompted the passage of state legislation designed to encourage farmers to keep land in agricultural production.

Lembeck worked with Penn State rural sociologists Dr. Donald Crider and Dr. Fern Willits to analyze responses from more than 3,600 Pennsylvanians for the survey. They found broad support in every region of the state for farmland preservation.

The greatest support came from the capital region, a seven-county area surrounding Harrisburg that includes some of the state's most fertile agricultural land. Eighty-two percent of respondents in that region wanted ag land preservation to receive a higher priority. Least likely to support farmland preservation were residents in the western and central regions, where 70 and 72 percent of respondents, respectively, thought the issue deserved a higher priority.

"In general, the greater the market value of agricultural products produced in a given county," said Lembeck, "the greater the proportion of respondents who felt that farmland preservation should be given higher priority."

Attitudes toward some environmental and land-use issues also were related to support for protecting farmland. Those strongly supporting farmland preservation also tended to be most critical of industrial pollution and rapid economic growth, tended to support parks and open spaces, and tended to favor land-use planning to guide community growth.

With a team of grays, tobacco planting got underway in the Ephrata area this week. One grower near Strasburg said he had started to plant on May 16 last year, but his local plants were not ready this year. At least some of the early plantings in the County were reported to be Maryland type plants shipped from the South. Managing Editor Everett Newswanger found this farm family in the tobacco field late Wednesday afternoon along North Railroad Avenue, near the junction of Route 322 east of town.

Pa. Jr. Holstein Judging Schools Scheduled

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 1992 edition of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Judging Schools are in final planning stages.

All Junior members, regardless of breed organization, are invited to attend the school closest to their home. 4-H and FFA members are also invited to attend one of the schools.

The two-day schools run from noon to noon the following day.

There are usually eight to 12 classes of animals judged, and each person in attendance has an opportunity to work one on one with an experienced judge on giving reasons. All the basics of judging cattle are covered by the school official.

The school officials this year are Lee Majeski, of College Park, Md., and Loren Elsass, of Wapakoneta, Ohio.

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — About 80 people attended a Saturday clinic of the Pennsylvania Draft Horse & Mule Association held at the Manheim Fairgrounds to further their knowldege of the working equine.

A number of members from around the state attended the clinic, while some attending for the first time joined the organization.

The day-long clinic began in the morning with seminars on feeding, teeth cleaning and shoeing horses and mules. There were also short classes on braiding and care.

The afternoon session included a demonstation and discussion of breeding and the use of ultrasound pregnancy diagnosis by Dr. Jeffery Edelson, V.M.D. and some hands-on instruction on hitching and judging.

Thomas Kling, a New Holland horse dentist, used a mule to demonstrate teeth cleaning and handling. He showed the crowd how he uses certain tools to keep the mouth open and filed and cleaned the teeth.

Nathan Yoder, a blacksmith in Peach Bottom, gave a demonstration of hoof triming and shoeing. He also later answered questions and showed certain techniques and tools he used to prepare shoes.

Dr. Richard Peacock, representing Pennfield Corp., talking about proper feeding rations, and about his company's products.

Perhaps the most unique demonstration was given by Dr. Edelson, who said he works on a breeding program of a large race horse operation in Virginia.

Edelson talked about the structure and function of the female horse reproductive organs, the timing and characteristics of pregnancies and the use of the ultrasound in confirming pregnancies and in

SRBC Holds On Ag-Use Regs

ELMIRA, N.Y. — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) met on May 14, at the Holiday Inn Downtown, Elmira, N.Y., to review past actions and hear reports on a number of new items.

Until it gets more information, the commission decided against putting into effect its consumptive-use regulation on agricultural water use.

According to a commission statement, the regulations will not be put into force until it can complete further investigation on the impacts of agricultural use on water flows and can consider the views and findings of an agricultural advisory committee.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Ten county high school seniors each collected a $1,000 scholarship from the Farm and Home Foundation on Tuesday evening. The scholarships will be applied toward pursuing degrees in agriculture and home economics at the college of their choice.

According to John Schwartz, director of the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, the scholarships are financed through interest earnings of a trust fund set up by the late Elmer L. Esbenshade. Because interest rates dropped almost in half this year, not as many scholarships were awarded. In the past 28 years, 331 scholarships were awarded to county students based on financial need,

Delmarva Broiler Fryer

May 20, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained moderate to good; however, advance interest was slow in developing. Supplies of whole birds were uneven but fully adequate overall. Less than trucklot asking prices were generally higher at 59 to 69 cents but premiums were not fully applied in several instances. Live supplies were moderate. Weights ranged desirable to heavy. Slaughter schedules were heavy and the majority of plants were projecting no operations on the upcoming Monday holiday. The market tone was steady at best. In the parts complex, buying interest was less aggressive and highly selective.

Trucklot buying interest was irregular today. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts ranged tight to adequate. Some retail inquiry for late week needs went unfilled while demand for pallet volumes slowed from early week. Line run breasts were short of trade needs but some buyers were not as aggressive at earlier. Leg quarters were in close balance with a continuing good demand for the upcoming holiday. Trading was reported at higher prices. Legs and wings were in good balance at steady prices. Thighs were slow to clear at lower trending prices.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

May 20, 1992

Compared with last week: Steers over 700 lbs. steady with good demand; under 700 lb. steers $1.00- $3.00 lower with moderate demand. Heifers closed steady to $1.00 lower; however heifers over 700 lbs. sold steady to $1.00 higher on majority of sales Monday. Heifer demand good early, poor late on light numbers and rough CME. Stocker buyers are in their seasonal doldrums as wheat is done and grass just starting. Pastures in this region are getting a fairly good start for summer. This week is thought to be the last big run of the wheat season. Quality of cattle well below most sales this wheat season. This suggests the end of the wheat run as the tail-enders come to town. Weigh conditions were mostly average, end full. Bulk supply was 700-900 lb. steers and 650-800 lb. heifers. Slaughter cows $1.75-$2.00 lower. Slaughter bulls $1.00 higher. Receipts this week 15,200; last week 14,949; last year 12,758. Supply consisted of 89% yearlings over 600 lbs.; 7% calves; 4% cows and bulls. The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 25-31, 1992

MR. BOJANGLES

National Tap Dance Day is celebrated May 25, the birthday of Mr Bill "Bojangles" Robinson Known to many as "The King of Tap Dancers," he was simply "Uncle Billy" to Shirley Temple, who worked with him in many movies It was Uncle Billy who taught the child star the dances in The Little Colonel, their first film together, and the one which featured the memorable staircase dance Shirley recalls that rehearsing over and over with a superlative and kindly teacher was exhilarating rather than drudgery For those of you who remember excitedly watching the perfectly matched triple-time tap race up and down the stairs, here's some advice from Bojangles "Limp wrists, loose in the shoulders There, that's it! Copacetic! Now let's get your feet attached to your ears "

You need more than dancing shoes to be a dancer.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

If the gardening bug has bitten you, try inviting more bugs into your garden Ladybugs, the gardener's friend, attack aphids, leafworms, and leafhoppers They're attracted by angelica, euonymous, goldenrod, morning glory, and yarrow Lacewings control aphids, and flock to oleander and plants in the carrot family Trichogramma wasps (which do not sting people) attack two hundred pest species, including spruce budworm. They like Queen Anne's lace, goldenrod, oleander, and strawberries

TENDER FLAKY PASTRY

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup lard
about 6 tablespoons ice water

Combine flour and salt Cut in lard until crumbs are the size of peas Add ice water a spoonful at a time until dough holds together Form dough into 2 balls, one slightly larger and flatten to about 1" high. Wrap well and chill for at least 1 hour Roll out on lightly floured board, using larger piece for bottom crust.

Makes 1 double crust for 8" or 9" pie.

OPINION

The Whitetale Deer Problem

The whitetailed deer is commonwealth property, which means the state deer herd belongs to every resident of the state. And if everyone owns them, then everyone is liable and responsible for the damage caused by them.

In other words, crop-damaging deer are a problem for the entire state — not just hunters and not just farmers seeking to preserve crops.

It's time for the state to either start addressing the deer problem meaningfully, or start coughing up some dollars to pay for deer damage.

The state Game Commission has the responsibility for the propogation and managment of game animals and birds (public property).

It does this through guidelines, which are law. The program is supported almost entirely through hunter's dollars.

However, the commission does not have full authority to do its job. It is not allowed the tools to fully manage public property (deer) on private property.

The failed attempts by the Game Commission to reduce problem deer herds by opening up special seasons and hunting areas reinforces the fact that the problem deer are untouchable — the fields of damaged crops are not where the deer spend most of their time. They hide-out, typically, on neighboring land which is posted against trespassing.

Posting is the problem.

If the public had proper access to its property (deer), there wouldn't be a problem with large populations of deer coming off of private property to eat a farmer's cultivated crops.

Therefore, the whole issue should be legally considered as a matter of private property rights conflicting with the public's right of access to public property.

Some possible solutions would be to:

• Identify those posted private lands which harbor nuisance deer herds and condemn the privacy to allow public access for deer hunting.

This is not a proposal to open up farmland where the deer are causing problems. Instead, it's a proposal to allow hunters to go onto those posted lands which surround the damaged farmland.

Private landowners whose properties harbor nusiance deer populations, as identified by the Game Commission, would have to allow hunters on their land, outside of safety zones, for the duration of deer hunting seasons.

Think of it this way: If someone's land is harboring large populations of disease-carrying, crop damaging rats, the state would come in and condemn the site for cleanup. Large populations of disease-carrying (ticks with Lymes disease, bovine tuberculosis, etc.) deer should be considered the same in these situations.

Or ...

• Allow, as the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) requests, a permit system to allow those who suffer crop damage a way to reduce the damage.

PFA asks that the Game Commission provide farmers suffering crop damage with deer kill permits. The permits would then be given to friends or strangers who would harvest nuisance deer prior to the regular hunting season.

Stipulate that the deer damage must be authenticated by commission personnel; and that damaging deer populations must be migrating daily or seasonally from adjacent posted lands. If a landowner purposefully allows deer to be protected on his own land and they cause crop damage on his land, that landowner shouldn't have any relief.

As an incentive, personal injury liability should be released against private landowners who allow hunting. It could be done similarly to what the insurance companies do now with auto insurance — if the hunter would sign a waiver of his right to sue, he would be allowed on the property to hunt.

Or ...

• Make the private landowner liable for damages caused by not allowing the public to harvest its property (deer). In this case, financial retribution for deer damage would be levied against those private landowners whose posting allows deer numbers to grow unreasonably and ravage neighbor's crops.

When the bill for damages would come due, it would be interesting to see how many of those landowners (especially nonresidents and those who have created large private hunting preserves at farmers' expense) would continue to post their land against hunting deer.

No one wants to see private property rights abridged recklessly. However, something must be done.

The PFA permit proposal seems to be the most reasonable and acceptable method for control.

To Reduce Crack Eggs

Crack eggs are costing the egg producer money. Cracks reduce the number of Grade A eggs you produce.

This reduction in Grade A eggs will reduce or eliminate the bonus you receive from your contract.

To make egg production profitable, you need to be making your bonus payments. In addition, crack and broken eggs will increase the number of dirty eggs produced, increase your cleanup time, and cause a breeding area for flies and bacteria.

There are several easy things you may do to reduce cracks.

Slow down the egg packing equipment as the flock ages. As speed increases, the number of cracks increase.

Keep equipment adjusted on a daily basis. Do not wait until the equipment breaks before making adjustments and repairs.

Remove all dead birds from cages. A dead bird may cause an egg jam that will break eggs and place a lot of eggs in the pit.

By paying attention to details and handling eggs gently, you will be able to keep crack eggs to a minimum.

To Think Child Safety

Tuesday's front-page story in the USA Today was titled "Fields of Danger." It was an article on the number of children hurt or killed on farms.

As we start the spring and summer farm activities, we need to be constantly thinking safety.

A Purdue study found children from the ages of 2-4 were most at risk as bystanders and ages 12-15 were another high risk group as they begin to tackle farm chores.

As a father of two small children, the last thing I want to have happen is for them to be in a serious accident or killed. I also know they are very curious people and have no understanding of danger.

As a result, adults must take the time to minimize childrens' risks. First, make safety a high priority in your life and set a good example for your family. Provide safety equipment for your children, such as goggles, steel toed shoes, respirators, etc.

Next, it is up to farm parents to decide when and where children should be involved in farm operations. For smaller children, child care may need to be more seriously considered. A group of farm families may want to consider forming a babysitting cooperative.

In the cooperative families, take turns watching each other children.

Farming is a dangerous occupation. By thinking and practicing safety, we will be able to reduce the number of accidents.

To Be Considerate Of Neighbors

This weekend marks the beginning of summer activities. Outside picnics, parties, and outdoor activities will be increasing.

As more homes are being built around our farms and fields, we need to be more sensitive to our neighbors' activities. This will require more time being spent on scheduling certain activities such as manure spreading and spraying.

Spending this extra time could avoid serious and costly problems in the future.

(This year I received a call about a farmer spreading liquid manure on a Saturday night with the mist drifting onto the neighbor's porch and dinner party. Needless to say, this person was not to happy.)

If we want to continue farming, we must become more aware of our neighbors. Take time and visit to become acquainted. Be interested in them as people. Discover their birthdays, anniversaries, hobbies, etc. Encourage them to tell you when they will be having outdoor activities. Also, tell them when you must do certain farming practices so they may plan their activities.

As one Delaware farmer told me, a weekend stay at a motel on him was a lot cheaper than legal fees he would have to pay to settle a neighbor's complaint on noise that happens several times a year.

By being a good neighbor and friend, and sensitive to neighbors' concerns, you should develop a good environment to farm in.

MAY I REMIND YOU

May 24, 1992

Background Scripture:
2 Peter 1:1-14.
Devotional Reading:
1 John 4:7-21.

In one of his books, Emmet Fox says that when people are offered a choice of a basic course in spiritual things or an advanced course, almost everyone wants the advanced course. No one likes to be thought of as being a beginner in spiritual things. But, actually, says Fox, in spiritual matters the advanced course is simply the application of the things we learn in the basic course.

I think he's right. In my own experience, what I so often seek to learn about advanced Christianity is nothing more than the application of what I already know. Contrary to what many people think, there is nothing mysterious or hidden about the basics of Christian discipleship. For many of us, the problem is not that we don't know enough, but that we don't apply enough of what we know.

Old Truth Applied

I wouldn't say that I never learn anything new in regard to Christian living, but that often what I "learn" is something I already know and have forgotten. If someone were to ask me, "Do you know such-and-such?", I'd reply, "Oh, sure, sure, I know that." But I tend to forget, even if just momentarily, some of the most basic principles.

So, very often Christian teaching and preaching is a matter, not of revealing new truth about the gospel, but of reminding people of what they already have heard. That's what Peter says in his second epistle: "Therefore I intend always to remind you of these things, though you know them and are established in the truth that you have... I think it right, as long as I am in this body, to arouse you by way of reminder." (1:12-14).

All of us have been taught that, if we want God to forgive us our sins, we must also forgive the sins of others. Nevertheless, we often live as if our forgiveness was quite unrelated to the forgiveness of others. Often, when I pray the Lord's Prayer, the words, "forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," strike me as if they were almost brand new.

Known or Done?

Maybe the reason we seem to forget these things is that we have grasped them only with the mind and not the will. They are ideas that we have entertained and thought about, but never really made a part of our daily living. Our minds can easily recall these ideas, but they have never been made operative in our lives. Once again, then, we see that the truth of the gospel is not so much a thing to be known as done. It is not a matter of knowing the right answers, but of experiencing the truth of them in our own lives. I believe the theologian Kierkegaard said of a certain preacher, that when God would call him home it would not be his sermons on which he would be judged, but his life.

Peter is reminding us of basically two things: (1) escape from the corruption of the world and (2) partake of "the divine nature" (1:4). Like his readers almost 2,000 years ago, we know both of those and, like them, we also need to be constantly reminded of them. It is so easy to become corrupted by the world's standards. Every day, perhaps every hour, we need to be reminded to live by the gospel, not the world.

Peter's second reminder is even easier to forget: that through Jesus Christ we can partake of the divine nature, experiencing the power and grace of God within. President Garfield once was asked why he nodded to a mere newspaper boy on the street. Replied the President: "Who knows what's buttoned-up inside that boy's overcoat!"

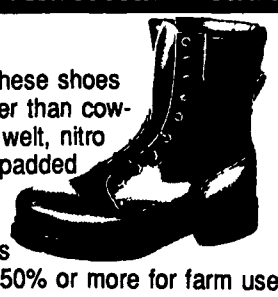
HORSEHIDE
GENUINE HORSEHIDE
Barnyard Acid Resistant American Made



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

Temperature Modulating Fan Speed Control

Designed to be splash and dust resistant in accordance with NEC Article 547.

The "Vari-Speed" VENTILATING Control is a SOLID STATE, single phase, variable motor speed controller, designed to automatically ventilate industrial, commercial and agricultural facilities. The Series 50 provides ventilation control in proportion to the error sensed between the controller set point and actual space temperature as monitored by the controller's sensor. As temperature changes, voltage to the fan motor is changed proportionately.

Weber Looks Forward To First Reunion For FFA Officers

Editor's Note: The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, assisted by eighteen former FFA state officers, has begun an ambitious search for former state officers - their addresses, what they are doing now, and recording their remembrances as a state officer and their thoughts today about the FFA and what it meant to them to be a state officer.

This article is in part the result of those searches. It is hoped that the Lancaster Farming's readers will be stimulated to aid in this search to find all the state FFA officers elected since 1931. If you know of a former state officer living in your area please either call Mary Jo Cancelmo, Foundation Executive Director (215) 648-0674 or write to the Foundation at Calder Square, P.O. Box 10493, State College, PA 16805.

Glen Weber is looking forward to the first state officer's reunion for several reasons, it will be his state officer's team 25th anniversary. The other members of his team were. "As we went our separate ways after serving the '66-'67 year together as an officer team, we seemed to disconnect over the years. But as I reflect back on our lives since then, I feel it is important to not lose sight of who we were and where we have been before. That one year of being an FFA state officer had a tremendous effect on all of us for the rest of our lives."

Glen and Lucy Yoder Weber review farm records.

When asked about the motivating force behind running for state office in the Pennsylvania FFA, Weber replied as have so many other state officers - "Going to the national FFA convention in Kansas City". The national FFA convention has been instrumental in producing positive motivating goals for FFA'ers all over the country. "You are looking at your own peers, who set goals and achieved them. Whether they are individuals who are being recognized as star farmers, team contest winners, or even national officers, those participants set the example for others to follow. I would say the national FFA convention is the number one selling tool the FFA has.

"I will never forget my sophomore year at Kansas City. The national president that year by the name of Williams, was on stage before thousands of FFA'ers, talking to the President of the United States, Richard Nixon. This was being broadcast live before the audience. President Williams had the poise to just talk to the President just as if he were his dad. I'll never forget that - it had a tremendous impact on me."

Son Justin Weber on a favorite horse.

Weber left that convention determined to one day be up on stage in Kansas City as a national officer. He began, under the guidance of Garden Spot High School chapter advisor, Bob Herr. On the local chapter level he was elected chapter president and then Lancaster County president. The summer after his senior years, Glenn was elected state president.

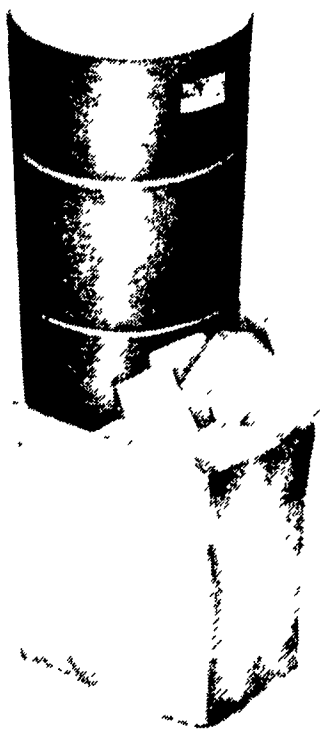
When Livestock Do The Shopping



You need the efficiency of a Harvestore structure. It easy-loads from the top and wisely unloads from the bottom. You can store grain at natural, high moisture levels* because a Harvestore structure minimizes spoilage and preserves the grain.

The price differential between a Harvestore system and other less efficient grain storage processing systems has shifted dramatically in the past few years. Before repairing or investing in outdated technology, contact your authorized, independent Harvestore Systems dealer

- Increases yield and quality
- Important part of intensive hay and pasture management
- Helps conserve valuable soil, fertilizer and water.
- Reduces compaction
- Improves manure management
- Reduces run-off
- Promotes extended stand life

"This year we ran the Aer-Way over half the land where we had harvested corn silage. We then spread between 4,000-5,000 gallons of liquid manure per acre and disked the seed bed to prepare for small grains. We were absolutely amazed at the difference where we used the Aer-Way and one disking. My non-Aer-Wayed ground was disked 3 to 4 times and still wasn't as good. I would recommend the Aer-Way to other farmers as it softens the ground and lets rain and manure penetrate instead of running off."
W.W. Sandford III -
Kenwood Farm, Orange, Virginia

"Earlier this spring, I used the Aer-Way implement and Aer-Way chain harrow on my rolling pastureland. This was done to open up the ground to get water into the sloping grasslands. At the same time I pulled the Aer-Way chain harrow to scatter the cattle manure around. Even after the dry summer we had, I noticed that the Aer-Wayed ground held the moisture better and we got thicker and taller regrowth where we ran the machine."
DR. Rex Wilhelm D.V.M., Stuart, Iowa

"I have better pastures since I started using the Aer-Way to aerate and renovate my pastures. Using the Aer-Way has helped me get the nutrients where they are needed. I would not recommend fertilizing or liming without running the Aer-Way first."

Cumberland Co. Junior Livestock Benefit Auction Set

BETH MILLER
Franklin/Adams Co.

NEWVILLE (Cumberland Co.) — Cumberland County's 4-H and FFA livestock clubs are facing a new problem and they plan to solve it with an old-fashioned solution.

The problem is a shortage of money.

The solution. FFA and 4-H leaders hope, will be the first-ever Cumberland County Junior Livestock Benefit Auction set for May 30 at the Newville Fairgrounds.

Some of the items that will be for sale at the first Cumberland County junior livestock auction set for May 30 at the Newville Fairgrounds.

Dozens of useful rare and unusual items will be auctioned off during the 6 p.m. event.

Diane Conaway, a 4-H leader and one of the auction's organizers, said the aim is to raise a vitally-needed $2,000 to finance the first joint round-up of the county's 4-H and FFA livestock groups.

Conaway and Bruce Lemmon, an FFA leader, said the sale is staged because two developments have left the local 4-H and FFA groups strapped for money and without their usual opportunity for a round-up.

The first, he said, is a reduction in funding from the state.

On top of that, Conaway said, came the news that there will be no Carlisle Fair this year. The fair is on at least a one-year hiatus because it has lost its spot at the privately-owned Carlisle Fairgrounds.

The 4-H and FFA livestock groups both had held shows during the fair. Because the fair received state Agriculture Department subsidies, much of the cost of those shows was covered, Conaway said. The club members only had to pay minimal entry fees.

The temporary loss of the fair and its financial support led to the decision to hold the independent round-up, Lemmon and Conaway said.

Conaway said the idea for the auction was born because FFA and 4-H leaders do not want to have to charge participants expensive entry fees.

A good bankroll from the auction will enable them to keep those fees down, she said.

Donations for the auction were soughts from local businesses especially non-agricultural businesses, to draw the attention to the general public.

Even the most discriminating auction-goer should have no trouble finding something of interest.

Perhaps the rarest item to be bid off the block by auctioneer Rick Foreman is a basketball autographed by Billy Owens, the Carlisle High Shcool basketball star who now is an outstanding rookie with the Golden State Warriors.

For football fans, a football signed by the Washington Redskins will be offered. A baseball signed by Atlanta Braves star Sid Bream, another local boy, should delight lovers of the all-American game.

Race fans won't be forgotten either, since a T-shirt featuring Dwight Leib, Number 22, is among the auction fare as well.

Other unusual items to be sold include a registered LaMancha doe kid, a 50-pound female pig, fly-fishing lessons on the Yellow Breeches Creek, a Chinese brush painting, and a white lace teddy.

Conaway said proceeds from the auction will be added to the $800 in private cash donations the 4-H and FFA groups already have received to help pay for the joint round-up, which will be held Aug. 10 at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

Even with the donation and auction money, the independent round-up will not be as lucrative as the events at the fair, she said.

Winners will get ribbons and trophies. Conaway said, but it is unlikely that there will be enough money to provide premiums.

Still, she said, at lease the youngsters will get the chance to earn some well-deserved recognition for their hard work.

Cuts more than hay. Cuts time.

New Idea 5212 Disc Mower Conditioners cut a big 11'9" swath and condition with 9'6" intermeshing rolls...the widest disc mower conditioner available. You cut and condition lots of hay with each trip. And that means you cut time.

The 5212 is a wider version of our well-known 5209.

Because both the 5212 and 5209 use the New Idea modular disc cutterbar design, there's less downtime.

Routine maintenance is simple. And, although unlikely, repairs are a breeze, too.

Best of all, you'll find our disc mower conditioners are just one segment of our hay equipment line. Round balers, disc mowers, sickle mower conditioners, rakes and hay handling tools are all available through your White-New Idea dealer.

Making Ends Meet And Corn Grow

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MERTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A small mountain of shelled corn was piled high inside a Hollywood-style storage building on a farm in Long Swamp township, in Berks County. It represented part of the annual income for Robert and Melinda Tercha.

Robert "Bobby" Tercha spent a Friday morning talking with a broker about timing and price, trying to set a deal for selling about 10,000 bushel. No good. The price wasn't right.

It made Tercha a little nervous, he said, waiting out the weekend. Even though he didn't have to sell the corn immediately, he wanted to lock in on the best price he could.

In the detatched reality which is the Chicago Board of Trade, upon which local prices are compared, weekend rumors or new official predictions could drop corn prices dramatically.

Or they could skyrocket.

Meanwhile, Melinda Tercha, wife of Robert, was working around the house. It has taken her years to forge a grass yard in the 3.5-acre wooded lot in which they built their home 10 years ago.

Poison ivy, which had choked the black cherry, oak and maple trees in the unihabited woodlot, took years to control. It has finally subsided in returning, she said, though it was persistent and required constant work to remove.

Robert came home for lunch, it was raining lightly all day, but all the planting on the 500-acre, father-son, cash-crop operation was pretty well finished.

What remained, was to feed the dozen Angus bulls the couple raises for food and market and make some phone calls.

In the kitchen, obsolete and antique butchering tools hang from a main beam. The tools are a decorative statement. The statement is, "We are farmers. We know how tc live off the land. We butcher and use almost every part of the animal. We make our own food."

Income comes from diversified endeavors — rentals, crop sales, animal sales, and, until recently, Melinda's job.

The arrangement allows the couple to be able to pay off the property which they are slowly buying from Robert's father, Stanley. Over the past 6 years, they have paid for 115 acres.

The father-son arrangement is an extension of a working relationship the two have held since Robert was a teenager and started paying for half of all new equipment purchases.

The two own a batch drier, which is efficient and makes it easier to store the corn. And they have enough room to store almost everything produced.

They also grow alfalfa which is baled, then fed to the steers and extra sold. A few feeder pigs are finished out for the family's use and market. The feeders are bought from Daniel Hartman, who rents one of the barns on the property and has a small farrowing operation.

The Tercha's also grow wheat and soybeans. About 75 to 80 percent of the acreage is put in corn, though they do rotate fields as much as possible.

The life-style is rural, the location less and less rural. Commuters who work in New Jersey have been buying up residential development homes to escape New Jersey and its problems.

Allentown is close by. Traffic on Rt. 222 gets heavier and heavier.

Melinda, who was recently recognized by the Pennsylvania State Grange for being awarded the national "Female Agriculturalist of the Year," complained about the increase in garbage thrown into their road-frontage fields.

She said that the bottles and cans and garbage bags and tires make for a lot of work. Monthly collections result in several bags of trash. Luckily, the township hauls away the roadside trash.

Tires have become more of a problem because most places won't take them for free. Rather than pay the extra money to leave old tires at the auto shop, more and more people are keeping them and ditching them along back roads.

Glass in the fields can slice tractor tires, expensive enough, but also filled with fluid which isn't great for the soil if it spills out.

The problem lies in educating the non-agriculturist, Melinda said.

Currently, she doesn't have a lot of time to devote to that. Since the company with whom she worked for 17 years closed down, she has gone back to school to get to a 2-year associate degree in elementary education that will enable her to work in a pre-school nursery.

But that doesn't mean the message doesn't get out.

The Terchas have been butchering for themselves for years. It started with Robert's grandfather and has been kept alive by the interst of Stanley, Robert and Melinda and others.

Every year at the Kutztown Folk Festival, which is also nearby, Robert performs a complete from start to finish butchering. People from the city come back year after year to watch.

(Turn to Page A23)

Robert and Melinda Tercha raise corn as a cash crop on more than 500 acres in eastern Berks County and also raise Angus bulls and some hogs for sale and for their own consumption. They store shelled corn and sell it through a broker, when the market price is right.

This Angus bull is one of a dozen the Terchas raise for meat and market. The Terchas said they prefer the texture and flavor of the young bull meat over steer meat.

Robert and Melinda Tercha stand in front of one of their tractors, stored in an equipment shed. Bob and his father Stanley farm in partnership and own their own equipment.

Robert Tercha talks on the kitchen phone to a commodities broker. Decorating the kitchen are old and antique butchering tools and utensils Melinda has collected. They are part of the family tradition of butchering, she said.

On the right, Dale and Pattie Maulfair stand with their youngest son David in front of the garden at their home in northern Lebanon County. The Maulfairs are opening their home July 11 for the state Ayrshire Field Day, during which there will be judging, a tour of the farm, family activities and an opportunity to socialize. This pastoral picture of Ayrshires and Holsteins is the pasture of the Dale Maulfair farm.

Lebanon Farm Family Welcomes Ayrshire Breeders

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

JONESTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Dale Maulfair is a familiar sight to those who attended the state Farm Show dairy shows for the past several years.

He was the lean, bearded figure, leading a sharp-featured Ayrshire around the ring in competition for the title of grand champion of the dairy breeds.

And while his cows were the figurative bridesmaid every time, never the bride, Maulfair persists in being one of the state's premier Ayrshire breeders.

But competing against the more numerous Hostein breed is never easy for any of the "colored breed" enthusiasts. And the judges saw what was in the ring — a lot of near perfection.

The supreme champion title went to a Guernsey.

Maulfair Acres' cows are delights to see, according to groups which come through to tour, or the youth groups which come through to judge several classes of Ayrshires.

Just having the opportunity to see several, tough classes of the red and white, multi-patched dairy cattle is a treat these days.

Guernseys stole the show for awhile in the American dairy cattle history. Jerseys have gained great leaps. And the Holstein has garnered the most support.

So where does the Ayrshire fit?

Dear to the heart of Dale and Patti Maulfair.

The Ayrshire is a family tradition at the Maulfairs. Although Dale says the breed is limited in the choice of bulls and that there are other breeding setbacks compared to some other breeds, the red & white fine-boned, delicate Ayrshire is his choice.

The breed's milk production average is coming up. The Maulfair herd runs an average around 15,000 pounds of milk.

It is also a smaller breed, and eats less than the Holstein, so a direct comparision on something as milk average is not a fair measure of the breed's ability to pay for itself as a dairy animal.

And that is probably the point in where Ayrshires fit in. They have good component possibilities, they have enough meat to be valuable, despite the meat buying prejudices against dairy cattle which aren't black and white, and they have good temperament.

But the Maulfairs are not snobs. They have half Holsteins and half Ayrshires at the 230-acre operation. Dale just purchased his father's Holstein herd last fall.

The two breeds get along well, he said, not showing some of the disparity in pasture authority which commonly occurs in mixing breeds such as Jerseys and Holsteins.

On July 11, the Maulfairs are opening up their farm to Ayshire breeders across the state. They said they expect about 175 people, but more would be welcome.

Set back a not-quite-secondary road in between residential areas in the northern Lebanon County area, the Maulfair property carries remnants of an older Lebanon County rurality. There are the old trees seeming to hold the ground in place and views of pasture and cropfields without power lines and house roofs cluttering up the picture.

On the bench on the porch near the front door are several dozen eggs and an honor box system of paying for the eggs, laid by a couple of hens, which are mainly for family use.

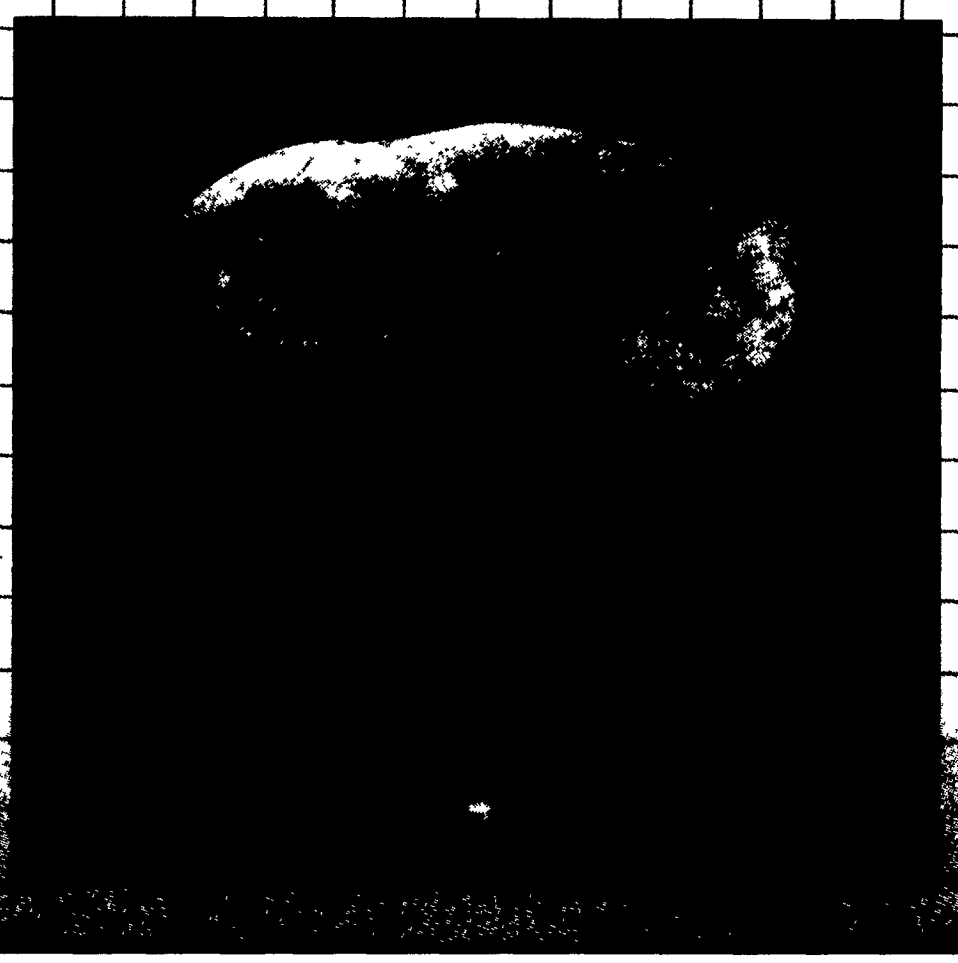
FOIL® BIOINSECTICIDE

Proven Performer / Consistent Control



Today, There is an Alternative — FOIL®
Environmentally Sound Control of Insects on Potatoes

Ecogen Inc. developed Foil® Bioinsecticide from a novel genetic combination of three strains of Bt (Bacillus thuringiensis). As insects eat Foil, they immediately stop feeding and crop destruction is halted.

Foil is the only biological insecticide that is effective against both Colorado potato beetles and European corn borers. Foil makes a powerful alternative to chemical pesticides and other Bt products.

With environmental issues a concern for all growers, Foil is indeed today's alternative.

Ag-Use Regs

Also, because of much improved streamflows and ground-water levels, the commission rescinded its basinwide drought emergency declaration, which had been placed into effect on September 12.

In other actions, the SRBC approved an increase in its interim consumptive-use fee from 6 cents to 14 cents per 1,000 gallons of water consumed.

The commission also elected U.S. Secretary of the Interior Manuel J. Lujan Jr., as chairman, and N.Y. Dept. of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Thomas C. Jorling as vice-chairman for the upcoming fiscal year.

The commission also adopted a proposed FY-1994 budget; ratified three water quality grant applications submitted by staff; granted check signing authority to the general counsel/secretary to the commission; adopted an outside employment policy covering commission employees; approved an extension of an intergovernmental personnel agreement for the services of USGS hydrologist H.N. Flippo.

It also adopted staff recommendations for project applications for Hamilton Village, Hardinge Bros. Inc., Shrewsbury Borough, Wise Foods and the Newport Borough Water Authority.

The commission also heard reports on the progress of the Agricultural Advisory Committee; the work and findings of the Chesapeake Bay Program by its executive director, William Matuszeski.

Making Ends Meet And Corn Grow

Melinda said that public reaction has been very good. People say they are amazed and surprised once they find out where different cuts come from and how the whole process is performed.

The butchering at the Folk Festival isn't as complete as the annual, week-long, family butchering process. The types of cuts are more limited at the public demonstration than at home. But people are genuinely interested. They are not offended, she said.

Her own involvement in the Grange gives her the opportunity to educate others in a more effective manner.

Both Melinda and Robert are active in the Grange and the Kutztown Young Farmers organization. They both have held officer positions. Melinda is currently reporter for their Y.F.

They said that education is not just for the nonagriculturalist. That's why Y.F. and Grange is important, they said.

"We don't just set up programs specifically for agriculture. We like other things too," Melinda said. "We visited a neighbor who is a taxidermist and another neighbor, who (rents from the Tercha's) is a glass blower.

"We like to see other things, just like anybody else," she said. "We try to keep our group updated and knowledgeable. I think you have to be, because the government is becoming very dominating when it comes to farming and operations.

"The regulations nowadays, compared to 5 years ago, are becoming so strict, I think," she said. "We have to keep all kinds of strict records. On top of all the paperwork we have to keep, the government wants to check up on you."

The national award she got from the Grange she said is more from working to promote agriculture, rather than actually doing it.

"I don't really drive the tractor and do field work," she said. "I'm kind of the 'go-fer,'" she said. "If they (Bob or Stanley) need a part, or some chore, I go for it or do it. I feed the bulls. Bobby and his father have gotten to where they don't really need me."

However, she has acres of grass to mow at the rental places, the home farm and their own farm. She also has a garden at the home farm to take care of and harvest from. She freezes the produce and she helps with butchering.

"That's a big thing (with the Terchas) that was passed on from Bobby's grandfather," Melinda said. "If you go to a lot of farms they don't do it anymore. I don't know if it's a lost art. I admit, it's a log of work.

"Bobby goes to the Kutztown Folk Festival (to demonstrate butchering). He's one of the few of his generation who can do it from start to finish," she said.

Her hobby since high school has been photography and for the last several years she's taken photographs and written text for family butchering photo albums.

"In years to come, it'll be something to look back on."

Bobby said he is proud of Melinda's achievements.

"I think it's a great honor to be honored by your peers," he said of Melinda, "that you've shown an interest in agriculture and spoken out for it. It seems to me you need to get the message out, in agriculture and outside of agriculture.

"You don't have to be a prefect, 100 percent modern farmer, but you should be aware of all the tools available to you."

Lebanon Farm Family

The neighbors in a residential development which crests the southern hill are frequent customers for the farm fresh eggs. Some of the children from the development are workers also.

Spreading manure is not a problem. Yet.

The people in the residential area are not hostile to agriculture. They seem to appreciate it and the open spaces it creates, Maulfair said.

He said he likes having the neighbors he has. Some of the local youth find summer work on the farm.

Hosting the state association's annual field day was a big move that was decided several years ago, Dale said. He'd offered his farm as site for the event then and it wasn't until this year that his turn came up.

But he shouldn't have any trouble getting guests to attend. Not with several state champion Ayrshire's in a row. See them for yourself, attend the field day July 11.

Receive $232,000 In Crop Losses

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service recently issued cash payments totaling $232,000 to Lancaster County farmers for crops lost during the 1991 drought.

The disaster payments were made to farmers on 288 separate farms, located primarily in the northeast area of the county.

Some of the crops that suffered losses included corn, soybeans, tobacco, sweet corn, potatoes, green beans, and alfalfa, according to County Executive Director Ray Brubaker.

"To be eligible for the program, farmers with crop insurance had to lose more than 35 percent of their 1991 crop production during the drought," said Brubaker. Those without crop insurance had to lose more than 40 percent of their crop production.

Forty-four of the 67 agricultural counties in Pennsylvania had qualifying disaster applications. Many of the eastern counties had normal or sufficient rainfall. Areas of Lancaster County that received adequate rainfall were in the south and east.

Weber Looks Forward To Reunion For FFA Officers

"In a way, I was surprised I got it. Harold Fogel, who was also running, had an older brother, Don, who had been state president. With that kind of insight into the ins and outs of being president, I thought for sure, Harold would get it." One particular member of Weber's team that he vividly recalls is Dan Hackenburg of Middleburg. "Dan was into bees and when all of the rest of us were referring to our 'Honies', Dan was not talking about the same thing - his honey was not his girlfriend, but a hive of insects." Dan today is still a bee specialist and has been President of the Pennsylvania Apiary Association.

"As a national officer, I loved flying around the country - especially when Ralston-Purina carried our team around on their private Lear jet. Several times the pilot would allow me to sit in the co-pilot's chair and this is where my love of flying began." Today Glen Weber is a flight instructor with a multi-engines rating. For the last fifteen years, in his "free time" he has been doing commercial charter work.

After completing his national officer tenure, Glen returned to Penn State University and received his degree in agriculture education and ag economics. He married his high school sweetheart, Lucy Yoder, and began teaching agriculture at Manheim High School in Lancaster County.

Two years later, Lucy and Glen started their own business, a convenience store called Country Acres. "We had our own deli recipes for things such as potato and macaroni salad and we started making potato chips to sell in the store. We took things one step at a time. Pretty soon we had built up to four convenience stores." From potato salad to potato chips, Glenn got into the commercial potato chip manufacturing business. He is now president and owner of King's Potato Chips in Bowmansville. And Lucy, his wife, has one of Lancaster County's most successful catering businesses, All Season's Catering.

Parents of three boys, Glen now can relive FFA experiences through his oldest son, Jason, who is a freshman FFA'er at Garden Spot High School. Glen and his son share a love for the breeding and training of Tennessee walking horses, which are all located on the Weber Farm in Bowmansville. Glen is also President of the Pennsylvania Walking Horse Association.

Is there another Weber in the future of the state FFA and national officer teams? Don't count it out - Jason as a freshman received the Garden Spot Chapter's Star Greenhand Award. And as Glen points out, "The big goal is accomplished by doing the little things, one day at a time."

Elizabethtown Agriculture Project Bolsters Life Skills

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — In science fiction stories, it's called "terraforming" — the process of adopting a hostile environment to one suitable for humans.

Much the same can be said for the work of the entire agriculture department at Elizabethtown, who have spent the last half year creating a thriving wildlife habitat and profitable operation from a farm that was, at one time, barely profitable.

Work began last summer to renovate sections of the 30-acre Bear Creek Farm, once owned by Dave Sweigart and sold to the Elizabethtown Area School District, into an educational facility.

A dedication ceremony, honoring the nearly 300 students, faculty, administration, staff, and volunteers, will take place on Wednesday, June 3, at 5 p.m. The event will include a chicken and fish barbecue as well as fresh salad prepared from vegetables grown in the students' greenhouse.

Educational laboratory

"The facility will serve as an educational laboratory for not only the agricultural department, but for the entire school and community," said Heather Henisee, president of the FFA chapter.

Also, the work on the facility has more far-reaching goals. The project, part of the Building Our American Community (BOAC) activities at the school, rivals the BOAC Award-winning project undertaken at the school in 1983 — the construction of the Elizabethtown Fairground.

"We feel this might be a project that would be worth a good run at the nationals," said William Erikson, agriscience teacher at the school and FFA adviser.

Much of the school, including 14 ag science classes, has been involved in the Bear Creek project, including FFA, agriscience classes, electrical class, wildlife, welding classes, and others. Erikson said that he wants every part of the school to be involved because it represents "more people involved and more agencies involved than the fairgrounds project." Erikson said the department has been working with "at least a dozen agencies" in renovating the farm.

Construction continues on a water diversion area around the Bear Creek Farm pond. The department plans to stock the diversion with various plants to help speed up the wetlands conversion process, according to agriscience instructor Al Martin, left. At right is Gary L. Swihart, fishery assistance project leader with the wildlife service.

Last week, Gary Swihart, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, seated, visited the Bear Creek Farm to work out the details of stocking the pond as part of the service's Partners in Wildlife program. At right is Al Martin, agriscience instructor at Elizabethtown.

Ag activities

Various agricultural activities comprise the project, including:

- A one-acre pond that has been expanded and includes a dock. The pond will be stocked, with the help of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, with minnows, crayfish, bullfrog tadpoles, water plants, channel catfish, bluegills, and striped bass. The 10 acres of wetlands will provide a hands-on laboratory for the school.
- 45 freshman agriscience students worked more than a half-acre of ground and planted a variety of vegetables. The students had to sign a contract to sell the vegetables with family and friends.
- The ag structures class, under the guidance of instructor Gary Gattens, involved various classes in the construction of a tool shed to store farm material at the site.
- School welding classes constructed a pumphouse at the pond to provide underground irrigation capability to the farm's 1-acre orchard.
- About 25 dwarf applies, 10 cherry, and numerous raspberry and Christmas trees were planted last year.

At the pond site, water testing is conducted continuously. Soon, the department will begin stocking the pond with various types of fish and other wildlife.

Construction continues on a water diversion area around the pond. The department plans to stock the diversion with various plants to help speed up the wetlands conversion process, according to agriscience instructor Al Martin.

Gattens' ag structures class contributed by building the shed, but he said that the students will continue to develop the area. "We're helping to improve the area by putting it back the way it was," said

Nutrient Management Planners Approved

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.)— The USDA Soil Conservation Service has issued a list of fertilizer venders and crop consultants who have been approved to develop nutrient management plans for environmental protection in the Pequea-Mill Creek Project area of Lancaster County.

These 25 ag chemical dealers and private consultants have completed nutrient management training and passed an examination sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Soil Conservation Service.

The nutrient management planners will use soil tests, information about manure production, and crop production information to recommend nutrient applications from manure and fertilizer to achieve an optimum agronomic yield while ensuring acceptable environmental protection.

Planners will include the environmental protection feature by preparing a farm operator's nutrient management summary that has been developed by the agencies in Pennsylvania that are responsible for environmental protection. The summary includes a manure spreading schedule, rates of manure application, and the fertilizer required to meet crop production needs.

Farmers will find that by working with an approved dealer or consultant, they'll be able to take advantage of the experience the dealer or consultant has in being a part of their farm operation in previous years. By being approved and using the recognized forms, a dealer or consultant will be able to offer nutrient management for environmental protection as a new service.

To have a nutrient management plan prepared, farmers can contact the Pequea-Mill Creek Project office, 311B Airport Dr., Smoketown, PA 17576, (717) 396-9423 for a list of dealers and private consultants.

Gattens. "This is a unique educational experience for the students."

Stocking pond

"Mother Nature also has a way of getting stuff started out there on her own," said Gary L. Swihart, fishery assistance project leader with the wildlife service. Last week, Swihart visited the farm to work out the details of stocking the pond as part of the service's Partners In Wildlife program.

"We're just speeding up the process," he said.

Martin, who is supervising the "terraforming" of the wetlands site, said that various fish have already been ordered for stocking, including channel catfish, large mouth catfish, bluegills, and striped bass will soon be stocked. Already, the areas have been stocked with water plants, including waterlillies, watercress, and bullrushes. Cattails have been placed in the ditches, where the should grow rapidly, he said.

Also, the water chemistry and flow are being studied.

Working closely

Erikson said that the ag department has been working closely with the administration and the school board on the project.

"I think the ag department has got to cater to life skills," he said. "Kids don't learn the traditional way. They learn visually, they learn by doing. And what better place to learn to do life skills than in agriculture?"

Next year, about 233 students are registered in ag programs at the school.

"If kids don't learn some of these projects and how to do them, then they're going to have to have a tremendously high-paying job to pay somebody else to do these things for them," he said. "And we can't teach sitting in a chair and our students sitting in a chair. That doesn't work anymore."

Erikson said, "You can tell a person, you can show a person, but if you get that person to do it, they understand it completely and the education is complete."

Nat Johnson, freshman, rototills the plot in which he will plant carrots, sunflower, and zucchini.

Beef Consignors Receive Report

WEST SALEM, Ohio — Sixty-seven Angus cattle producers are anxiously awaiting the results of the 1992 Certified Angus Beef Feedlot Gain and Carcass Contest.

Although final results will not be released until late July, consignors and interested cattle producers were given an opportunity recently to visually evaluate the steers' progress during an open house at Decatur County Feed Yard, in Oberlin, Kan.

Mick Colvin, Certified Angus Beef Program executive director, shared preliminary carcass data information from the first group of 42 steers slaughtered at the Excel-Ft. Morgan plant April 23. Colvin reported a high percentage of the group met Certified Angus Beef carcass specifications.

He commended consignors for their interest in learning more about their cattle's feedlot and carcass performance.

"The beef industry should focus greater attention on designing product specifications to provide a high quality product for consumers rather than changing specifications to meet demands of the production sector," said Colvin. "Programs like this carcass contest give the beef industry an opportunity to address the concerns identified by the National Beef Quality Audit and provide consumers with a consistent, high quality product."

Randy Blach, Cattle-Fax director of market analysis, provided open house attendees an indepth analysis of retained ownership. Blach identified variation in production costs as one of the key areas cattle producers need to target for increased efficiency. He also called for a consolidation of industry profit centers to lower costs of production.

John Crouch, American Angus Association director of performance programs, also addressed the group regarding use of expected progeny differences (EPD) in sire selection. Crouch stressed the significance of EPD as they related to genetic traits which can be accurately measured and analyzed to provide a sound base for breeding decisions.

Warren Weibert, Decatur County Feed Yard general manager, spent time evaluating the contest entries with attendees and consignors at the feedlot. Overall comments indicated consignors were impressed with the cattle's progress and were looking forward to receiving final carcass data.

Contest results will be unveiled July 25 during the National Cattlemen's Association midyear meeting in Denver. The Certified Angus Beef Program views the contest as a critical opportunity for producers to learn more about their production and value-added marketing options.

Corn Plantings Could Total 1.45 Million Acres

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The U. S. Department of Agriculture's prospective plantings report places Pennsylvania's 1992 corn seedings at 1.45 million acres, 4 percent above last year. Corn plantings for the nation are expected to total 79 million acres this year, 4 percent more than last year, and possibly the largest acreage since 1985.

Richard Troutman, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said the acreage actually planted may vary from those indicated because of the 1992 farm programs, the effects of weather, availability of production inputs, and changes in economic conditions before planting.

The report is based on voluntary responses from approximately 70,000 farmers and ranchers to a mail survey conducted the first two weeks in March.

"Many producers had not made their final planting decisions for the 1992 crop year at that time," Troutman said. The signup period for this year's farm programs ended May 1. Therefore, the survey results are only a preliminary response to the 1992 Feed Grain Program, he said.

The program contains a 5 percent acreage reduction requirement for corn, grain sorghum, and barley and a 0 percent reduction for oats. It offers a federal target price of $2.75 per bushel and price support on loans at $1.72 per bushel. Farm prices for corn in 1991-1992 are expected to be around $2.40 per bushel.

The USDA report shows that Pennsylvania farmers planted 1.4 million acres of corn in 1992 and 1.38 million acres in 1990.

According to Edelson, twins are common in euqines because the viability of the sperm is four to five days, and the horse can come into a second heat, although one fertilized egg has already traveled toward the uterus.

He explained how triplets can occur also when two follicles release eggs about the same time and both get fertilized and then a follicle on the other ovary releases an egg several days later, which becomes fertilized.

He showed several video tapes of previous ultrasounds he performed on horses. He said he video tapes all of his ultrasounds so that

Food Pyramid Emphasizes Grains

DENVER, Colo — The Wheat Foods Council today endorsed the USDA's selection of the Food Guide Pyramid as the graphic to convey the types and amounts of foods Americans should consume on a daily basis.

The guidelines call for Americans to consume six to 11 servings from the bread, cereal, rice and pasta group on a daily basis, a significant change from the old guidelines, which called for only four servings of grain products.

"The graphic shows Americans that we need to restore grains — the bread, cereal, rice and pasta group — to their historic place as the staff of life," commented Judi Adams, M.S., R.D., executive director of the Wheat Foods Council. "We're being told to increase consumption of some of the foods we enjoy most.

"To date, much of the discussion has focused on what we need to eliminate from the diet," explained Adams. "This can be very discouraging to consumers, many of whom believe eating right means giving up favorite foods.

"There is a very positive, powerful message in this," Adams explained. "Consumers are being urged to consume more of certain foods — foods we do fine enjoyable, like fruits, vegetables, bread, pasta and other grain products.

"Americans need to learn how to identify grain foods and the important role they play in the diet, gain some understanding of serving sizes, and see how easy it is to incorporate these guidelines into practical, everyday terms."

A Gallup poll conducted for the Wheat Foods Council revealed, for example, that Americans don't know their grains. "Unfortunately," commented Adams, "our research found that Americans no longer recognize wheat foods when they see them." The poll revealed that 49 percent of Americans could not correctly identify white bread as a wheat food. And, 48 percent incorrectly identified oatmeal as a wheat.

Grain products are a valuable source of energizing complex carbohydrates, which play an important role in a healthy diet. Increasing one's intake of grains can actually help displace unwanted fat calories while also giving a sense of fullness and satisfaction.

Consumers can eat more of many foods they like, from pasta to hard pretzels, while keeping total daily calorie intake intact. "It becomes much more manageable," Adams explained, "when serving sizes are put into perspective." A typical pasta dinner, for example, provides three servings from the grains group. A bagel is equivalent to two servings. A single serving of cereal is three-quarters of a cup. A slice of toast is about one serving.

There are many easy ways to incorporate more breads, cereals, pasta and rice into the diet.

- Instead of skipping breakfast, eat a large bowl of cereal, a whole bagel or a muffin.
- For an afternoon snack, try breadsticks, or a hard or soft pretzel.
- Rather than eating pasta once a week, try a variety of sauces and serve pasta three times a week.

Try to get two or more servings of grain products per meal. For example:

- Eat a bowl of cereal and a piece of toast for breakfast.
- Eat a pasta salad along with your sandwich.
- Have a roll or piece of bread with your dinner.

The Wheat Foods Council is a nonprofit organization formed in 1972 to help increase public awareness of dietary grains, complex carbohydrates and fiber as essential components of a healthy diet. It is supported voluntarily by wheat producers, millers, bakers and related industries.

Draft Horse Association Holds Clinic

he can provide them to other veterinarians, and to back up his findings and recommendations, should they be questioned.

With the aid of drawings and the video tape, Dr. Edelson showed what a fertilized egg looked like, what a tumor looked like and also showed how to abort unwanted eggs using the ultrasound.

He said he recommended its use at least twice during a pregnancy. And he cautioned that the cost of using ultrasounds for pregnancy detection is costly, but that it is vital to breeding expensive horses which may be worth tens of thousands of dollars, to protect the large investments people make into breeding top quality racing horses and other high quality breeds.

Using a live pregnant mare, Edelson peformed an ultrasound for the group, showing the developing embryo.

On breeding, Edelson also told the group that horses, although seasonal breeders, can be induced to come into a breeding period through the use of light therapy.

He said that after the horse becomes anestrus for the year, they can be brought into heat by bringing them into a lighted barn about a half hour before the sun goes down. The lights should be on a timer and have to have a minimum power of 200 foot candles.

According to Edelson, horses reproductive cycles are driven by the peneal gland, which is located behind the eyes, close to the pituatary gland.

Adequate light strength and duration of 16 hours-per-day, every day, for 60 days, is needed to get the horse to start cycling, he said.

Any mistakes during the 60 days will nullify the entire process.

He said, however, that research is being pursued on findings that a single bright blast of light can do the same thing, though much more work needs to be done with that before any recommendations could possibly be made.

Members and officers helped teach about hitching and judging, using a variety of equipment and horses.

The members also held a banquet during the evening.

The association held its first clinic in 1979 in State College and had 80 members. The growth of the association now numbers more than 240.

Saturday's clinic was organized by Delmar and Lowell Landis, of Lititz, and Luke Bruckhart, of Manheim.

"The seminars are for people, experienced and new. And we had a fair amount of new people this time," Bruckhart, association president said.

Anyone intersted in joining the association should contact Bruckhart at (717)655-5198, or the Landis brothers at (717) 569-0574, or 569-7778.

Economist Explains Preferential Farm Tax Assessments

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — County-wide reassessments have triggered dramatic increases in the number of acres of Pennsylvania farmland enrolled in preferential tax programs, according to John Becker, an associate professor of agricultural economics at Penn State.

These programs can reduce property taxes by as much as 60 percent, Becker told the Ag Issues Forum last week, at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim. The Forum is a group of farmers and agribusiness leaders who meet monthly to discuss issues facing Pennsylvania's farm community.

Enrollment in the preferential tax programs increased from just over 500,000 acres in 1981 to more than 3.7 million acres as of April 1, 1991, according to Becker. Farmers from 42 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties are enrolled.

Under Pennsylvania Act 319, the "Clean and Green" law of 1974, farmers can ask county governments to value their land as farmland for the purpose of computing real estate taxes. Another law, Act 515, has similar provisions. Most farmers who apply for this kind of tax relief are in areas where real estate prices are inflated by development pressures. A corn field next to a housing development, for example, has a higher market value than a field that is surrounded by other farmland.

Market value is often a moot issue until a county elects to reassess its taxable property. In Lancaster County, for example, farmland values are under intense pressure from population growth and a relatively active real estate market. However, there has been no county-wide tax reassessment for decades, so farmland valuations for tax purposes are fairly low. In fact, only two Lancaster County farmers are enrolled under either Act 319 or 515, for a total of 24 acres.

Participation would increase, as it has in other counties, with a county-wide reassessment.

Becker told the group that under Act 319, the program most commonly used, farmers can qualify for lower tax assessments on three categories of land - that which is used for agricultural production, in an agricultural preserve, or in a forest preserve.

Land in agricultural production must have been in use for three years before it can be considered; it must consist of a parcel that is at least 10 acres in size; or, if it is smaller, it must produce at least $2,000 in annual sales.

Ag preserve lands are a minimum of 10 acres in size, do not generate any income, and must be open to the public.

Forest preserves must be able to produce salable timber products and must be at least 10 acres in size, unless they are part of a farm, in which case there is no minimum acreage requirement.

Farmers who enroll in preferential tax programs can become ineligible by changing to non-farm uses, or by selling off part or all of the property for non-agricultural uses. In those cases, the legislation has provisions that call for repayment, with interest, of any tax monies that were saved by virtue of the preferential treatment.

GAIL E. STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

"How many of you have your spices organized alphabetically?" the speaker asked. Two women out of 100 raised their hands as the other 98 laughed and groaned.

"How many of you save a 10" piece of embroidery floss thinking you can use that some day?" As several women raised their hands others laughed as they recognized themselves.

"How many of you approach a yellow light at the intersection and say, 'I'd better slow down.' How many say, 'Go for it.'"

Women attending Spring Homemakers Day at Hartman Center in Milroy, Mifflin County, spent much of the morning laughing and nodding as they saw themselves through the stories and characteristics emphasized by speaker Jane Mecum. As Extension Family Living Agent serving Perry and Juniata counties, Jane's talk, "You're Driving Me Crazy," centered on the tendency in each of us to be right brained or left brained, with a final emphasis on communication.

"What we're talking about is functioning from the right or from the left. We all have a dominant side. Let's give you some examples of how you function from the right or from the left.

"For example, all of you, I hope, brushed your teeth this morning. Those of you who are from the left side picked the tube up and began squeezing from the bottom. That is an organized fashion. You're living in a sense of physics. What you squeeze from the bottom moves to the middle, gently goes to the top and on to your toothbrush. Life is perfect.

"However, those of you who are right brained grab the toothpaste in the middle and squeeze. You just want the toothpaste out. That's your goal."

Spring yard work offers its own examples. The left-brained person mows a certain way on a certain day as the tulips that were planted systematically bloom beautifully. The right-brained person is just thankful to get the lawn mowed.

As Mecum complimented right-brained people on their need to be organized, she said problems can arise when they feel the need to organize you! And you're functioning from the "When I feel like it" right side of the brain.

To be fair, Mecum stated that right-brained people are organized, but in their own way. "Their organization consists of stacks — and you know who you are!" Mecum joked. Those stacks are proof that the right-brained person just can't throw anything out!

Mecum went on. "How many of you have husbands who have their tools organized from the long screwdriver right down to the tiny one — in order! And if you use one of those screwdrivers and put it back just a tad bit different, he knows it."

In decision making, while left brainers gather all the facts to make an informed decision, they also have a tendency to be less flexible. A right-brained person can see both sides of an issue.

When relating to children, Mecum warns that most children function from the right side of the brain and that we need patience and understanding. Take time to listen to them, Mecum says. They are not spinning a long yarn just to annoy you or to waste your time, they are just expressing their "little right brains".

A person functioning from the right side of the brain tends to be very creative, agreeable, and loves attention. They are fun-loving talkers who are outgoing and love to do more than one thing at a time.

Professionally, left brainers tend to be accountants, researchers, lawyers, and secondary teachers who teach facts. Right brainers become artists, dancers, writers, and elementary teachers who creatively make learning fun for younger children.

While the right brainers can cry so very easily, many times the left ones are criticized for not expressing emotions. "Perhaps," Mecum adds, "she is crying in a different way. A lot of times we don't understand how they do express their feelings. It's very internal".

So how does this apply to family life? The answer is easy to understand, but harder to put into practice.

First, understand which type of person you are, your spouse is, and your children are. Then communicate, compromise, and cooperate.

Mecum suggests that 85 to 90% of right brainers marry a left brainer because "you need some organization is your life". Although we all can function from either side at any given time, we're born favoring one side or the other. The important thing is to allow the other person to express their side. An overly rigid left brainer can kill the creativity of a right brainer — even causing severe personal problems, Mecum offers.

No matter which side a person functions from, and no matter how much you love your spouse, it is the little things, like squeezing the toothpaste, that annoy and create spats in family life.

"As long as you're both willing to give in a little," Mecum concludes, "that's the key. Be willing to understand and not to be too concrete. Communication is the key."

Left-Brain And Right-Brain Characteristics

Are you so organized that you drive your spouse crazy? Are the drawers "stuffed" with anything and everything? If either of these statements describes you, don't worry you're just right brained or left brained! It will save a few grey hairs and maybe a wrinkle or two, if you understand which you are and which the rest of the family may be. The following are some characteristics of each:

LEFT BRAIN DOMINANCE

1. A need to be organized! Clear off the desk, kitchen counter, or anything else in the house. Everything has a place.
2. A need to organized you!
3. Enjoys rules and then of course follows all the rules. Deadlines are a must.
4. Bases all decisions on facts. No maybes here.
5. Generally not flexible and feels the need to stand firm on a decision.
6. Bottom line people. Cut through the fancy description and just get to the end.
7. Usually conservative in nature.
8. Wants things to be in sequence and not out of order.

RIGHT BRAIN DOMINANCE

1. It has been said they "march to the beat of their own drum".
2. Decisions are generally based on a "feels right" attitude.
3. Loves piles; their piles are organized in a special fashion. If you ask them for anything, only they can find it - in their piles. Try and find the wood top of their desk or an empty kitchen chair.
4. Very creative. Minds are always working toward creative endeavors.
5. Generally agreeable, and loves to be around people. Often will be spontaneous.
6. Most of these people will marry the opposite brain dominance to help bring order to their own lives.
7. They will buy almost anything! A salesman dream.
8. Simply can't throw anything away. Last year's Woman's Day or Mechanic can be found some where in the house — ask them to find it and they can.

We all have a little right and a little left brain working all the time. But, there are some people, and you know who you are, that are strictly right or left brained. If there is a child in the family that seems different or you have a spouse that you can't understand why they behave a certain way, perhaps they are brain dominated differently than you. It is important to understand these differences and not try to change them — after all, that is what makes them special. Appreciate what each family member brings to the family. Learn to cooperative and negotiate any differences. Remember, YOU ARE TERRIFIC!

WARMING PRECOOKED FOODS

* Always cover precooked foods with microwave-safe plastic wrap, waxed paper or a glass lid. This will keep moisture in the food and provide even cooking.

* Heat leftovers and precooked foods to at least 160 degrees F. If you do not have a temperature probe, heat the food until it is very hot to the touch and steaming.

* Use caution when warming baby food. Stir toddler foods thoroughly and taste-test them yourself for child-safe temperatures. Shake milk or formula in a bottle before tasting as it can become extremely hot.

WHAT UTENSILS, WRAPS AND COOKWARE CAN SAFELY BE USED?

Glass and glass ceramic cookware are safe for microwave cooking. But what about other materials? Use only those containers and products that have been approved for microwave use. These items are designed to withstand the high temperatures possible when cooking foods that have a high fat or sugar content.

Avoid the use of cold storage containers such as margarine tubs, whipped topping bowls and cottage cheese cartons. They have not been approved for microwaving. The high heat of the microwave can cause chemicals to transfer into the food.

Waxed paper is safe. Other paper goods such as paper towels, plates and napkins have not been tested for use in microwave cooking. If you use paper bowls and plates, for optimal safety, use only plain white paper goods. Never use brown grocery bags or newspapers. These contain recycled materials and metals which could start a fire.

Avoid letting plastic wrap touch foods during microwaving. It is okay to cover utensils with plastic wrap, but unless the wrap is a heavy-duty type, it could melt in contact with hot foods.

Oven cooking bags are safe for use in the microwave. They are made from a very tough nylon material. Oven bags also promote even cooking, which helps meat reach safe temperatures throughout.

You should be aware that there may be a problem with some metallic package materials designed to brown microwave foods.

These heat "susceptors," thin films metallized with aluminum, usually laminated with adhesive onto paperboard, absorb microwave energy to produce temperatures hot enough to "brown" or "crisp" foods.

You find them in microwave popcorn bags, cardboard pizza crisping platforms and in packages of microwave French fries, fish sticks, and Belgian waffles.

While the components of heat susceptors were originally approved by the Food and Drug administration, that okay was based on usage at temperatures below 300 degrees F.

FDA is now concerned that some of the products are reaching 500 degrees F. This could mean that package components are breaking down and migrating into the food itself.

For that reason FDA is asking the industry and the scientific community for data and other information to demonstrate the safe use of these components in heat susceptor packaging.

Until a final determination from safety results is made, you can protect yourself by following these guidelines:

Follow package directions when heating microwaveable food with special browning or crisping devices in the package. Never try to reuse these special browning devices.

Do not eat food from a package that becomes "charred" in cooking. Handle carefully, they become very hot to the touch and could cause burns.

Never reuse trays and containers provided with microwave convenience products. They have been designed for one-time use with that specific food only.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

If I didn't know better, I'd declare sometimes they were figments of my imagination.

Their presence is more sensed than seen. Like classic ghosts, though, they leave behind distinctive clues. Objects moved around. Clutter strewn about. Cupboards and refrigerators emptied of their contents. Fingerprints.

You know they're there. But just try and find them when you need 'em.

The Phantom Farmers.

Springtime planting season stirs their elusive activities with renewed frenzy.

They stir on schedule, early every morning, leaving currents of air swirling through the kitchen in their wake. Their nebulous travels seems to center around in the area of the milk jug and powdered chocolate mix, the coffee pot, the fruit, cookies, and granola bars.

Soon after, they turn noisy, marked by banging, clanging, pounding and roaring sounds echoing from various directions around the farm. On occasion, then even clank and rattle chains, the heavy sort used to tow stalled or stuck equipment.

Hammering from the direction of the farm shop telltales phantom fix-it sessions. And a steady clatter of drag chain and heifers crowding around the feed bunk says a phantom is running silage.

But just try and find one of 'em.

The phantoms whisk by on tractors, bundled in hooded sweatshirts and coveralls if the day is cool and windy. Though their faces are a blur at best, familiarity with clothing patterns usually offers fairly-dependable identity clues.

Sometime I pick up the office phone and hear a phantom voice on the barn extension hooked up to a vet, equipment parts dealer or feed firm. Or the sound of footfalls overhead or a slamming basement door hints that a phantom has again crossed the threshold.

Yet, even with my fastest 50-yard-dash time, or leaping two steps at a time, the elusive presence will have vanished in the time it takes to gallop that direction and holler, "Hey, are you there?"

They aren't.

Sometimes they leave behind solid evidence of their passage. Dirty boots. Dirty dishes. Dirty clothes. Greasy bearings or torn sections of hydraulic hose. Hunks of dairy barn manure or size 12 muddy footprints. (Three size-12 pairs of feet can leave a LOT of phantom tracks.)

And phantom notes. Like "Need two plowshares." "Order minerals." "Bossy in heat." "Planting at Grandma's," or "Won't be back for lunch."

This last usually found after I've just finished putting lunch together. One thing for certain. Though elusive and barely glimpsed, phantoms do consume staggering quantities of food, albeit at strange hours and sometimes strange places far from the kitchen table.

Through this most intense season of the phantom phenomenon, packed lunches and thermal-jugs of lemonade disappear from the kitchen, seemingly into thin air, to be consumed by these unseen ghosts with ravenous appetites. The returned trash, however, is very real, including thick and durable coatings of field dust on the white lids of the drink jugs.

Phantoms occasionally surprise you with mysterious "leavings" — a bunch of your favorite wild daisies from a fencerow, an armful of lilacs from a long-abandoned farmstead, or a couple of Johnny Jump-Up plants rescued ahead of the plow.

Like classic phantoms, they are most likely to show up long after dark, reeking in a aura of oil and grease and manure and alfalfa innoculant and dropping bits of hay and straw as they float on clouds of chisel-dust residue powdering your clean kitchen floor.

They'll edge closer and closer as you shrink back from their frightful (read filthy) appearance, they whisper in a raspy, dust-dry-throat voice:

More Than $110 Million in Extra Payments

Robert B. McSparran
President

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past four years, we returned more than $110 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $31,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Vegetable Micro-Lesson

With microwaving, vegetables are not only an essential part of the meal, they're one of the best parts. Fresh, frozen or canned, microwaved vegetables retain their attractive color, fresh taste and natural texture. Since you add only a small amount of water, just enough to produce steam, you don't drain off flavor and nutrients before serving.

Vegetables with a high natural moisture content will taste better than after any other cooking method. Until you taste microwaved corn on the cob, you'll never realize how much good corn taste you discarded with the cooking water.

Vegetables should be tightly covered. The ones that are cooked in their skins, such as potatoes, are already so tightly cooked, that they should be pricked with a fork before cooking to release excess steam.

Salt vegetables after cooking, or put salt in the casserole with the water before adding vegetables. Salting the tops of vegetables before microwaving causes darkened, dried-out spots.

Vegetables continue to cook after they are removed from the microwave oven, even in the time it takes to serve them.

Cheezy Broccoli

2 packages frozen chopped broccoli
2 cups packaged precooked (Minute) rice
2 cans (10¾ oc. each) cream of chicken soup
1 cup milk
1 jar (16 oz. pasteurized processed cheese
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
1 can (6 oz.) water chestnuts, dried and sliced

Place unopened packages of broccoli on end in microwave oven. Microwave at HIGH 4 to 5 minutes, turning after 2 minutes. Set aside.

In 3 quart casserole combine rice, soup, milk, cheese, salt and pepper. Microwave at HIGH 2 to 4 minutes, until cheese melts and can be blended easily.

To cheese mixture, add onion, celery, water chestnuts and broccoli. Stir thoroughly. Divide evenly between 2 lightly greased 10x6x2 inch dishes. Microwave one dish at a time. Microwave at HIGH 12 to 14 minutes, rotating dish 1/2 turn after 5 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Makes 12 servings.

NOTE: For convenience, freeze one dish of broccoli. When cooking from the frozen state, unwrap, microwave at HIGH 18 to 21 minutes, rotating dish ½ turn every 5 minutes.

Mix water and cornstarch until smooth. Stir into carrot mixture. Add pecans if desired. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 2 to 4 minutes, until thickened. Stir before serving.

3/4 cup crushed crackers
2 tablespoons butter, cut in pieces
Paprika

Place egg in 1 1/2 quart casserole and beat well with fork. Stir in milk, sugar, corn, crackers and butter. Microwave at Medium High 7 minutes and stir well.

Sprinkle with paprika. Microwave at Medium High 11 to 14 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn after 5 minutes. When done, center will be barely set. Makes 4 servings.

Cauliflower Au Gratin

For convenience, this recipe uses herb-seasoned stuffing mix, but you may substitute coarse bread crumbs dried in the microwave oven.

Place one package (10 oz.) frozen cauliflower in water and salt. Microwave at High 8 to 9 minutes, stirring after 4 minutes. Drain off liquid from dish.

Sprinkle stuffing mix, then cheese, over cauliflower. Microwave at High 1 to 2 minutes, uncovered, until cheese melts. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Corn On The Cob

For most even blanching, cut corn off the cob before blanching. Blanch corn cut from 4 ears at a time. Place cut corn in 1 quart casserole. Add 1/4 cup water. Cover. Cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring after 2 minutes. Cool by setting casserole in ice water, stirring occasionally until cool.

Is Your Infant At Risk For Food Poisoning?

CARLISLE (Dauphin Co.) — When you warm your baby's food, do you heat the whole jar even though it may not be eaten? Do you feed your infant baby food directly from the jar or storage container, or return uneaten food to the jar or container? If the bottle isn't finished, do you keep it for a future feeding? When you are going away for the day, is the filled bottle thrown into the diaper bag so you'll have it conveniently when you need it?

A yes answer to any of these questions, puts your baby at risk for foodborne illness. Heat food thoroughly. If not taken to a temperature of 165°F, the food is warmed enough to promote bacteria growth, but not hot enough to destroy bacteria.

Bacteria from the infant's mouth contaminates the formula in the bottle when sucking on the nipple or when the feeding spoon is put into the dish or jar of food. Leftovers become an ideal medium for bacteria growth. Formula, just like milk, will spoil if kept out of the refrigerator after the can has been opened. It must be kept refrigerated. This is also true for opened jars of baby food.

Because infants do not have well developed immune systems they are more susceptible to foodborne illness. Follow these suggestions to prevent infant food poisoning.

- Put just enough food into the dish that the baby will eat.
- Heat only the portion of food that will be used. Any leftover heated food that has been contaminated from the spoon should be thrown out.
- If the child has not finished the bottle, throw out the leftovers.
- Keep chilled formula in a thermos when going out for the day. Don't open the formula until you are ready to use it. If you can't refrigerate it, or put it on ice, throw it out.
- Use the same rules for expressed breast milk; keep it cold or throw it out!

For more information about keeping your baby's food safe, request the new guide: How to Heat Refrigerated Infant Formula in Microwave Ovens. Call Penn State Extension at (717) 240-6500.

Weather Affects Older Adults

More than 90 percent of the deaths related to heat waves are of people over 50 years of age. As temperatures rise the body cools itself by sweating and pumping more blood to the skin. Due to physical changes in the blood vessels' ability to dilate properly, older people pass less blood to the skin. What can older adults do to assist the body in maintaining a favorable body temperature? Drink more water than thirst dictates. Older adults possess a less sensitive thirst mechanism, often drinking much less fluid than their bodies have lost. This is useful information for all ages during periods of extreme hot weather or

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 1

The Lancaster Co. Society of Farm Women 1 met in the Brunnerville Fire Hall for their mother and daughter banquet. Forty-seven members and guests attended.

President Julia Zahn presided and opened the meeting with a welcome to members and guests.

A table grace, sung to the tune of Eidelweiss, was offered by members and was followed with a turkey dinner.

Mrs. Scott Garman led devotions. Her scripture reference was taken from the book of Proverbs. She had some special thoughts for mothers and shared two letters which had been written by Helen Keller when she was a child.

Roll call was answered by telling an amusing story about one's mother. There were many funny stories.

Dorothy Rutbell was installed as a new member into Farm Women Society No. 1 by Pres. Julia Zahn.

Six of the society's members sewed at the Lancaster General Hospital on April 20. They sewed one hundred and ninety one pieces.

On Tuesday evening, May 19, at 6:30 p.m. Society No. 1 will be the guests of Society No. 27. The meeting will be held at the Marietta Congregational Church.

The guest speaker for today's program was Barbara Brosey from the Manheim Library. She showed two films, "The Corduroy Bear" and "The Frog Goes to Dinner". Both are humerous films. She concluded her program with this thought: "If a person has a book and a garden they have everything."

The next meeting of Society No. 1 will be a dinner show at the Rainbow Theater in Paradise on June 16. Husbands and friends are invited. For further information concerning this meeting members can call Mrs. Scott Garman 717-626-6082.

Perry Society 1

Perry County Farm Women Society #1, met April 30 at the home of Grace Book. The meeting was "bring a friend" and the roll call was answered by telling how you met your friend. The ladies tried their hand at bow making with the help of speaker Donna Bower. Hand towel bibs for a childrens home were brought to the meeting. Delicious Rhubarb Crunch and orange mint tea, recipes from the state Farm Women Cookbook, were served. Mary Lou McMillen gave a report from the state board of directors meeting.

Lancaster Society 19

A luncheon was held at the Hempfield Church of The Brethren on May 9, when the Society of Farm Women #19 entertained Society Number 25.

After a delicious lunch, the group was entertained by Jean W. Roth. She presented a monologue, "Harriet Lane-America's Princess." This was interspersed with piano music of the speaker and group singing of songs by Stephen Foster.

Berks Society 4

Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 met in the Boyertown home of Ferne Kulp.

Elizabeth Mangers of the Boyertown Civil Air Patrol spoke to the group and showed videos of the important work the Patrol does in search and rescue. She explained the various programs offered for young people that can help with their careers in the future.

An invitation was received to attend the 40th anniversary of Group 2 at the Bethel Community Center on June 23. A thank-you was received for canned goods donated to the Reading Food Bank. Each member received a begonia plant in honor of Mothers Day.

The next meeting on June 2 will be at the home of Renee Ketterer, Powdermill Hollow Road, Boyertown.

Hot Weather Food Hints

• Is it okay to take carry-out food like fried chicken to a picnic since it's already cooked?

• If the chicken will be served and eaten within 2 hours, it's okay to pick it up on the way to the outing. But, if serving will not be for several hours, it's better to purchase the chicken well in advance of the picnic, and chill it thoroughly. Then pack it in the cooler and eat it cold.

You're Invited... To A Birthday Party

Children love parties, especially birthday parties. And, the party that will be remembered long after the traditional cake and ice cream is the party you've created with love and imagination.

The very best parties have a theme, and here's where your child will definitely have an opinion. Will it be a safari? A circus? Dinosaurs? Or, the latest movie character? Put your imagination to work as you plan the invitation, decorations, entertainment, even the menu.

• Make the invitation unique. If your theme is a "day at the zoo," use animal postcards you can buy at the zoo gift shop. An invitation that will be hand-delivered can take the form of a large animal-shaped butter cookie. Use colored decorator's icing to write the date, time, and place.

• Be sure the decorations carry out the theme. Borrow your child's stuffed animals and add brightly colored balloons and streamers. If you're artistic, use colored construction paper and felt tip pens to make animal heads out of balloons. They'll make great favors. A tape or record with animal noises playing in the background will add to the atmosphere.

• Start the party as soon as the first guest arrives. It's a good idea to plan an opening activity because not all of the children will arrive at the same time. Arts and crafts work well here. Then, when everyone is finished, you can begin the games.

• Be creative with games. Three and four-year-olds enjoy simple games with a new twist — like a banana (instead of an egg) toss or pin the trunk on the elephant. Five and six-year-olds are ready for a safari treasure hunt. Whatever the game, don't forget the prize — for everyone!

• Make the food special. Children delight in food that takes on new forms.

Parrot Punch, created by the American Dairy Association, has a bright green color. Lime sherbet, milk, and frozen limeade concentrate are blended until smooth, then topped with lemon-lime soda for a fizzy finish. Fruit perched on the rim of the glass resembles the parrot's colorful feathers.

No kid will be able to resist the "Beary" Chocolate Birthday Cake. It's simple to make because it uses a chocolate cake mix. Yogurt added to the mix keeps this bear moist and tender even if you bake it a day ahead. Frost with a simple buttercream frosting and decorate with candies.

To expand the menu, offer Giraffe Grilled Cheese (use animal-shaped cookie cutters to cut the whole wheat bread and American cheese slices) and monkey nibbles (assorted raw vegebles, apple wedges and seedless grapes). The sandwiches can be assembled ahead and refrigerated to be cooked at the last minute.

• Ending the party on a happy note. When it's time to say goodbye and thank you, let the birthday child hand each guest a goody bag. Colorful tote bags decorated with animal stickers can hold a zoo-full of loot — animal erasers, stickers, a decorated animal-shaped butter cookie, a book, and a pair of funny sun glasses.

Featured Recipe

Kids cones are fun to make for a children's party. With a supply of vanilla ice cream, some flat-bottom cones and cookie and candy decorations, you can loose creativity. Here are some ideas from the American Dairy Association to get you started.

First, place large scoops of vanilla ice cream on the number of cones desired.

For soilder: Invert colored flat-bottom cone on ice cream for hat. Cut chocolate wafer cookie in half; use half for visor of hat. Use blace licorice shoestring candy for chin strap, red cinnamon candies for eyes and nose and red shoestring candy for mouth. Use pieces of hard candy for ears.

For butterfly: Cut a chocolate wafer cookie (or brown edge wafer, striped shortbread, etc.) in half. Arrange as wings on ice cream by pressing curved edge of each half into ice cream at 45 degree angle. Use red cinnamon candies or other small candies for eyes and pieces of candy shoestring for antennae. Cookie may be decorated with tube of prepared frosting piped through tip with small hole.

For candy flowers, fruit: Roll out large gumdrops on sugared surface. Cut into petals for flower. Arrange on ice cream to form flower. Use small piece of candy for center. Cut green gumdrops to form leaves and stem. Or cut into fruit shape, such as an apple. Use green for stem and leaves.

Guidelines For Vegetarianism

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — Vegetarianism, a hot topic of the 80s, has received little attention in recent years. Vegetarianism, in a vague sense, refers to the abstention from meat. There are numerous reasons for observing such a practice, including economics, religious beliefs, ethical, and ecological matters. In this decade, the most common rationale seems to be due to health concerns.

With the 1990 Dietary Guidelines recommending to choose "plenty of vegetables, fruits, and grain products", a vegetarian diet at face value would appear to fit the bill. Studies have shown a reduced incidence of many chronic diseases of western society amongst the vegetarian population. Specifically, vegetarians tend to be leaner than nonvegetarians and have lower blood lipids and blood pressure. In addition, one study concluded that Seventh Day Adventists (a group which practices vegetarianism) were only 50% as likely as U.S. caucasians on the whole to develop adult onset diabetes.

With these statistics, should one think twice before converting to a vegetarian? Yes!

Even the vegan who plots and plans his/her diet for optimal nutrient value is at a high risk for deficiencies of protein, iron, zinc, and calcium, as well as vitamins D and B_{12}. "These nutrients are found abundantly in milk, but not in foods from vegetable sources," states Rose M Stoia PhD RD LD, Nutrition Education Consultant for Dairy & Nutrition Council and lifetime vegetarian. The lacto-ovo-vegetarian diet contains all the necessary nutrients with the added feature of being low in fat and cholesterol and high in fiber. "Low fat dairy products are highly recommended for the vegetarian," adds Dr. Stoia.

Jay Bell, Pittsburgh Pirates' shortstop, signed autographs and visited with children and adults at the Pittsburgh Children's Festival. Bell, a dairy industry spokesperson, made the appearance on behalf of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. At the festival, children also entered daily drawings for free Jay Bell Dairy Growth Charts.

At the Pittsburgh Children's Festival, the Pennsylvania Dairy promotion Program brought the dairy industry to city children. Here, youngsters shake and make dairy pudding while mom enters them in a Jay Bell Dairy Growth Chart drawing. More than 2,500 kids made Real dairy pudding and received free promotional literature.

Brine To Cure Ham And Bacon

For ham use 2 pounds brown sugar for each ham
For bacon use 1 pound sugar for each bacon

Put enough water in a crock pot or new plastic garbage can to cover the ham or bacon. Add sugar. Add salt until a whole raw egg floats when placed in the brine. It is best to use very warm water and the mixture must be stirred to dissolve. Bacon should remain in the mixture for about 4 days and ham for 2 to 3 weeks. Then smoke.

Sun Exposure Safety

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Many of the skin changes attributed to aging are in fact signs of sun-induced skin damage. Every year, more than 500,000 people in the United States get skin cancer. It is the most common form of cancer, with rates growing three to five percent annually. Left untreated, skin cancer can be life-threatening.

Test yourself with these true or false questions.

- Sunscreens labeled "15" and higher do not protect you against all the sun's rays.
- A tan may protect you against sunburn, but not against all wrinkling or skin cancer.
- You can endanger your skin by using too little sunscreen or not applying it one-half hour before going out in the sun.
- Infants under six months probably should not be in the sun at all.
- Sunlight coming through a window can damage your skin.

Even if you are more careful than ever about going out in the sun nowadays, you may be surprised at the answers to the above questions. All of them are true.

While you may be used to warnings about limited sun exposure and using sunscreens, researchers are becoming ever more cautious about how much sun is good for you.

ORANGY MILK PUNCH

1 quart vanilla ice cream
2 pints orange sherbet
16-ounce carbonated lemon-lime beverage
1 quart milk

Combine softened ice cream and sherbet and lemon-lime beverage; chill. Before serving, gradually add milk; beat until mixture is smooth. Serve in punch bowl. Garnish with orange slices, if desired. Makes 24 one-half cup servings.

Kids Explore The Deeps On Maryland Farm

SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — The wagons pulled into the gravel lane and came to a rest under the trees and around the barn.

"Here they come," I called to my husband.

No, we weren't under Indian attack, and the wagons were not the Conestoga variety.

As the doors to the station wagon and vans were opened, out came two dozen visitors from the Montessori School of Westminster, Maryland. We greeted the young visitors in the yard in front of the house where three-year-old Rachael Schuster's great-grandparents had lived. "Welcome to The Deeps, our home, where your classmate, Rachael, is fourth generation to live on the family farm."

The three-, four- and five-year-old students came to our farm in New Windsor, Maryland, to take a nature hike through the trees and meadows.

A few precautionary statements were in order before we set out on the trail. "Never touch a wild animal, look out for fences, stay with your buddy, and don't cut your foot!" That's what my father used to tell me when I was a little girl, hiking along the very same trails, when I accidentally stepped in cow dung.

We pointed out the date on the side of the huge red barn — 1868. "That is the home for our cows," we explained. "They come here to eat and sleep and to spend the winter."

Our first stop was at the pond, about a half-acre in size, and home to thousands of fish. As one small fry examined another, I told them the kinds of fish that inhabit our swimming hole.

"We stocked the pond with Blue Gill, Crappie, Large Mouth Bass, Silver Channel Catfish and Goldfish." Each pair of kids took a turn coming onto the dock to throw pieces of bread to the fish.

"They're really hungry," they exclaimed, as our little Blue Gills splashed them.

"I liked feeding the fish," said Hilary Barkin.

"Look, they eat out of her hand," said the kids with amazement, as I held a piece of bread close to the water's surface, and fish jumped to get a bite. "When Rachael and I dangle our feet in the pond, the fish nibble at our toes," I added.

Chuck Schuster (on tractor) took the young visitors for a wagon ride around the farm.

After feeding the fish, we picked up the cowpath and headed out on our nature hike. It wasn't long before Mother Nature was putting on a show for us.

"The best part of nature hikes are the unexpected surprises, such as the flock of goldfinches," said Linda Felker.

Mrs. Felker, classroom aide, accompanied the students on the trip, along with parents, Katherine Barkin, Linda Donaldson, and Ann Webb. The brightly colored finches covered a huge tree and were a colorful spectacle when our walking made them take to the wing.

We meandered along the creek and ventured nearer to the edge for a closer look. The aroma of fresh mint filled the air as we crushed the leaves under our feet. "Mint grows all along the water's edge. Rachael and I like to pick the leaves and dry them so that we can use them in our tea in the wintertime," I commented.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Loretta Frank, Oxford, N.Y., wanted a recipe for peanut butter pie made from scratch similar to those served at Bob Evans diners. Thanks to Eva Mae Heisey, Centre Hall, and to Naomi Hackman, Southeastern, for sending recipes that they believe are very good.

Peanut Butter Custard Pie

4 heaping tablespoons creamy peanut butter
8-ounces cream cheese
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ pound confectioners' sugar
1 large container whipped topping

Mix all ingredients together. Pour into 9-inch baked pie shell and chill. Top with chocolate bits if desired.

Peanut Butter Custard

⅓ cup peanut butter
¾ cup confectioners' sugar

Blend together and sprinkle ⅔ of the mixture in a 9-inch baked pie crust.

Combine the following ingredients and cook until thickened. Pour in baked crust:

⅓ cup flour
½ cup sugar
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
⅓ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Blend the following ingredients for meringue and place on top of pie filling:

3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sprinkle remaining peanut butter crumbs on top of meringue. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

ANSWER — Brenda Breisch, Bloomsburg, wrote that her husband wanted recipes for homemade fruit wines. Thanks to M.L. of Pine Grove and to Fran Westfall of Spring Grove for sending recipes.

Sour Cherry Wine

1 bucket cherries
10 pounds sugar

Slightly heat cherries covered with water. Put cherries into a crock and squeeze. Add a little more water and 5 pounds of sugar. Cover crock with a cloth and let stand one week. Add 5 pounds sugar again. Drain cherries into 4 one-gallon jugs and cap with the cloth.

Store in a warm place until the wine is finished fermenting. Keep 6 months before using. Strain wine.

Strawberry Wine

Start with 3 gallons of ripe strawberries. Discard leaves and dirty berries. Mash the berries in a sterilized widemouth crock and let them stand for 3 hours.

Press out juice and strain it. Add a gallon of water and four pounds sugar. Stir until the sugar is completely dissolved.

Transfer the liquid to a sterilized glass container and let it ferment. Water seal it after the wine has stopped working and let it stand until perfectly clear. When the wine is no longer cloudy, bottle it, cork it, and seal it.

ANSWER — For the reader that requested a recipe for soft pretzels that taste like Auntie Anne's, here is a recipe that tastes like those and is hard to beat according to Esther Lantz of Leola.

Soft Pretzels

¾ cup warm water
1 tablespoon yeast
4 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup soft as silk flour
1½ cups Occident bread flour

Dissolve yeast in water. Add other ingredients and knead well. Let rise for 15 minutes. Do not punch down. Roll into pretzel shapes, then dip in baking soda water (1 cup water, 4 teaspoons baking soda). Place on an absorbent towel then on a greased cookie sheet. Sprinkle with salt. Bake at 550 degrees for about 10 minutes or until golden brown. Brush with melted butter.

Kids Explore The Deeps

Minnows swam hurriedly downstream as we stood on the bank of the stream. The water was clear enough to see that the bottom was muddy and rocky.

Buttercups were blooming in the meadow near the creek, also. Ellie Camlin took the tried-and-true buttercup-under-the-chin test, and we determined that indeed, she loves butter! Everyone took the buttercup test and we got back onto the cowpath.

The snake that usually suns himself on a hollow log retreated into his safe hideaway before we got to see his colorful-patterned skin. Marching on, we entered a shady, wooded area of the pasture. A few of the smallest kids got to try out the grapevine swing that Rachel loves to sit on each time she takes a walk.

Danny Sullivan said that he liked "climbing on the trees," the best. "We're coming to the jungle gym tree," announced my husband, Chuck.

The children knew just what to do on the huge tree that had been uprooted in a storm years ago but is still growing sideways. After climbing over, under and around the tree, the kids perched themselves on one of the big limbs for a class picture.

Still walking parallel to the meandering stream, we followed the cowpath to more interesting trees. "That looks like Peter Rabbit's doorway," exclaimed Mrs. Donaldson. A pair of trees formed an arched doorway through which the children played follow-the-leader. As saplings, the trees most likely were bent over by the fence or a log and grew in the odd arch-shape that forms a little natural playhouse.

The cowpath led us to the back pasture which brought us to one end of the 150 acres that make up The deeps. The railroad tracks lie just across Little Pipe Creek which serves as a watering hole for our herd of Angus cattle. The cows were grazing in the big meadow just beyond the gate.

"Do you see that cow over there with the black dot around her eye?" I asked the hikers. "Guess what her name is..." You're right — she's Dot!"

The children chuckled and headed for the stony outcropping of rocks in the woods beyond.

May apples with their green umbrellas stood in masses. The children walked above them on Mother Nature's balance beams which were really fallen limbs.

Ashley Walkers said that the hike was lots of fun. "I liked the cows, streams, cows tracks, and the birds that were golden."

She was one of the first to reach the big rock and take a look over the edge to see how high up we were.

"We're as high as the treetops," I pointed out, as we looked at New Windsor from our lofty perch.

'G' is for groundhog. Well the Farmer's Alphabet book that the class read back at the Montessori classroom before they visited us didn't really say that. But they did get to see some big holes that a whistlepig had recently excavated. One hole was big enough for little Sara Fan or her friend Samantha Drogue to disappear into.

It was about that time that Samantha came to me and said, "Mrs. Schuster, I'm tired." It had been a long walk - almost an hour.

"Samantha, you're in luck. Your taxi just pulled up," I reassured her. Chuck started the tractor and opened up the gate to the hay wagon that we had left there before the class arrived, to haul them back to the house.

"Yea, a hay ride," they cried with excitement. "I've loved tractors since I was one," said Shiloh Frey as he climbed up onto a bale of hay.

"I liked getting in the wagon," said Ashley Zombro.

"Going on the hay ride was fun," agreed Krista Webb.

"I liked the hayride," said Grace Donaldson.

Unfortunately, Grace's mother, Linda Donaldson could not ride in the wagon because of her allergies. She hopped in the car with me (I had it parked close by) and we raced back to the house to prepare a snack for the weary hikers.

Just as they sang the last refrain of "Old MacDonald Had A Farm," the wagon came to a halt next to the barn and everyone headed for the picnic table next to the pond. They were back where they started. By that time, a light snack of fresh strawberries, cheese, pretzels, crackers, and a special treat called Purple Cow, were on the table. In true Montessori style, students waited until all were served before anyone took a bite. Hilary Barkin said "having snack was the best part. It tasted like ice cream. We're going to try it at home," she added.

Judging by the purple mustache that Laura Augustine sported, Purple Cow was a hit. A simple recipe of milk, grape juice and ice cream — what better way to end a visit to the farm?

Purple Cow

2 cups cold milk
1 6-ounce can unsweetened grape juice concentrate
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened

Put all of the ingredients in a blender. Mix well, pour into four glasses (preferably clear glasses so you can see the purple color) and enjoy!

Laura Augustine walks through a tunnel formed by two adjacent trees that have grown in an arc shape. A parent, who accompanied the students, said that the unique tree looks like Peter Rabbit's doorway.

Hausman Fruit Farm: Where The Finest Fruit Is A Few Steps From The Orchards

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

COOPERSBURG (Lehigh Co.) — "In our business, it seems like we must be always planning ahead at least five or six years and then we are still a couple of steps behind," said Ray Hausman of Coopersburg.

But the Hausman Fruit Farm and Fruit Shoppe has made an impressive impact with their continual efforts in improving the land and in marketing innovations.

In fact, Hausman and his son Keith, who is in partnership in the business, were named the 1991 Outstanding Conservation Farmer in Lehigh County.

"They earned the award," said Sam High, district conservationist with the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service, "for their continual practices to not only conserve their own farmland but also the acres they rent."

The award based on a lifetime of achievement was a complete surprise to the Hausmans. But it wasn't a surprise to those who know the Hausmans and their commitment to conserving the hilly slopes for fruit and vegetable growing.

Hausman's father, George, purchased the 70-acre Lower Milford Township farm in 1916. At first, George grew potatoes on the land, but soon he developed a large poultry operation and hatchery. In 1928, his interest in fruit trees began and the orchard has been blooming ever since.

When Ray purchased the farm from his father in 1965, the first thing he did was contact the Conservation Service immediately for a plan for the 5- to 10-percent slopes. He decided to switch completely to fruit and vegetable growing and he saw a need to control erosion.

"The county has mostly Norton or Chester soil that tends to wash hard and cause gullies," Ray said.

The SCS designed a series of conversions.

"That first summer there was a noticeable improvement. The diversions really stopped erosion," Ray said.

But soil conservation was far from over. Extensive plans were drawn.

"Unlike most plans based on crop rotation, orchard rotation requires 25 to 30 years. We don't want to uproot productive trees so we need to wait until the trees need to be replaced to finish the conservation plans in each orchard. The 25- to 30-year plans look really strange to most people," High said.

When the old trees are bulldozed down, new trees are not planted immediately because the land does better if it is planted in corn or other crops for about four years before being replanted with trees.

"I don't like to see water run away so we modify plans as things change," Ray said.

Water control structures intercept flow of storm water into a pond, which is used for irrigation.

The pond water is a big help in dry seasons. Although many farmers suffered severe drough last year, the Hausmans said that they had enough to get them through.

"We had several thunderstorms hit our acreage that bypassed nearby areas," Ray said.

When Ray first began soil conservation, he had a 20-year-lease on 60-acre plot that he rented. "I put in diversions and did all contour planting there," Hausman said.

That 20-year-lease has now expired, but Hausman continues to rent it and other land on a year to year basis.

The Hausmans prefer to keep most of the orchards in grasses to prevent soil erosion. They also let 50- to 75-percent sod in driveways between each 12 to 14 rows of corn.

Despite almost 30 years of soil conservation, the Hausmans are not yet finished. They recently acquired 40 acres on which they are implementing a plan for the peach orchard they intend to plant there.

They have already established contour lines for the orchard and constructed sod waterways. Eventually they will install an irrigation pond to route storm water into it.

While some farmers frown on the shorter, contour rows required in soil conservation, it doesn't bother Ray.

He said, "My grandfather always said that you can get more from a crooked row than a straight one so I guess that goes for trees also."

The Hausmans are excited that the new acreage is virgin soil for trees. "Orchards always produce better when planted in virgin soil," Ray said. "We don't have as many problems with soil bore and parasites. We stick with reputable nurseries to make sure we don't bring any parasites in."

They plant trees with ¼ -to½ -inch trunk diameters.

"It doesn't do any good to plant a bigger trunk because the shock on the system isn't as hard on the smaller trees. Within five years you can't tell the difference between trees that are planted with larger trunks and those with smaller ones."

When Ray first took over his father's business, it was geared mostly to wholesale customers.

"I felt the income was too low for wholeselling so we went to retailing," he said.

He built a store on the farm that is open year-round.

"That meant we needed more variety to extend the season," Ray said. "We expanded from five varieties of apples and one of peaches to include 11 apple varieties, 16 peach varieties, 5 pear varieties, nectarines, strawberries, sweet and sour cherries, blueberries, tomatoes, pumpkins, and sweet corn."

They also started keeping the fruit in cold storage and controlled atmosphere, which means they now have apples to sell from late July through June 1.

The whole family works together, but each has his or her responsibility. Ray controls spraying of fruit trees and pays the bills.

Keith controls spraying of the strawberries, sweet corn, blueberries and marketing. Detailed records enable the Hausmans to know that produce is operating at a profit or loss.

"We stopped raising capons because we couldn't make money on them," Keith said. "Sweet corn is definitely profitable to retail but not very good for wholesale so we cut our sweet corn acreage."

Tomatoes are one of the Hausman's most successful crops. About six years ago, they put up three greenhouses where they grow tomatoes. About one-third of the crop is wholesaled while the remainder is retailed.

(Turn to Page B17)

District conservationist Sam High, center, discusses contour planting with Keith, left, and Ray, who together were awarded the Outstanding Conservation Farmer of the year by Lehigh County Conservation District.

Ray examines tomatoes that the family grows in three greenhouses. Although growing tomatoes are labor intensive, Ray said, they are one of the most profitable crops the family grows.

Children Who Consume Calcium Have Lower Blood Pressure

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.)— Children who get plenty of calcium — by drinking their milk — may be warding off heart trouble by lowering their blood pressure. Research at Boston University School of Medicine, in conjunction with the Framington Children's Study, found that preschool children seem to keep their blood pressure down by consuming milk and other calcium-rich foods. According to Althea Zanecosky, R.D., nutrition media specialist with the Dairy Council in Southampton, "Dairy products are the chief source of calcium, with a 8-ounce glass of lowfat milk containing 300 milligrams of calcium and a cup of yogurt having up to 400 milligrams."

Details of the study were based on a review of the eating habits of 80 children. Food records, from these girls and boys, ages 3 to 5 years, were compiled over a year, with 12 days evaluated. Researchers found that for each 100 milligrams of calcium consumed in every 1,000 calories, the children's blood pressure was lowered significantly. In addition, those children, who have higher than usual blood pressure early in life, often go on to develop hypertension in adulthood.

A calcium and blood pressure link in animal studies was found over 10 years ago in research done by Dr. David McCarron, of Oregon Health Sciences University. McCarron found that the younger the animals were when they consumed calcium, the bigger the impact on their blood pressure in adulthood.

And, perhaps, this early start goes back even further! Another recent study found that newborn babies of mothers who consumer sufficient amounts of calcium during their last 3 months of pregnancy had lower blood pressures.

Facts About Endometriosis

Endometriosis can affect every facet of a women's life. This includes her ability to work, to reproduce, and her relationships with her mate, child, and everyone around her.

This disease also is a major cause of infertility, according the Facts About Endometriosis, a new booklet from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD).

The disease can strike women of any socio-economic level, age, or race. Symptoms include fatigue, severe menstrual cramps, pain in the abdomen or lower back.

The booklet answers many of the most important and frequently asked questions about endometriosis, its diagnosis,and treatment.

BARN PAINTING
SPRAY & BRUSHING

To farm building owners —
Under today's farm economy it is time to reduce maintenance frustrations.

Do you remember of hearing of barn painting of approximately 75 years ago that it stayed nice longer? lasted 25 years?

Observation #1 In recent years many of these good old barn surfaces have been ruined by overcoating, poor preparation and application, lack of controlled paint placement and film thickness. The time is coming to salvage our buildings (a) Start over (b) Water blast (c) RESURFACE (d) Use solid stain to penetrate on bare spots! (e) Second coat with a breathing film thickness (f) Brush out in all directions with finest of bristles.

Really it is not as complicated as the recent changing regulations on clean milk production, or wet soils, or zoning. It is also less expensive than other barn painting experiences!

Observation #2 Colored water (latex) is less desirable for farm buildings. There is a long list of reasons for this.

Observation #3 Todays painted metal siding and roofing has a remarkably short life. Bad alloy or metal. There might be another list of reasons for this. To save it at reasonable coating cost - timing is important.

Observation #4 Today's wood selection for siding etc. is also poor. How about recycling building material?

Extension Plans Singles Convention

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — "Living, Learning, and Laughing" is the theme for the second annual convention to be held June 5 to 7, on the Bloomsburg University Campus for single adults age 25 and over. It will offer opportunities for social interaction and self development among adults who are single by divorce, legal separation, death of a spouse, or by choice.

"The registration deadline is May 20", according to John Abell, convention facilities chairperson and assistant dean of the school of extended programs at Bloomsburg University. Late registrations will be accepted on a space available basis until June 2. However, Abell notes, "If the early registration response is any indication, the goal of 300 participants will be reached well before June 2." For information, call the Magee Center at (717) 389-4420 or write PA Singles Convention, Magee Center, 700 West Main Street, Bloomsburg, PA 17815.

Supermarkets Use Codes To Identify Plastics

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Have you been wondering about the numbers that are appearing on the bottom of products you buy that are packaged in plastic containers? The numbers are the result of the plastic industry's effort to make the identification and separating of plastics easier for consumers and recyclers. The numbers, which are enclosed by three solid arrows that form a triangle, indicate the type of plastic used to make the container. The seven types of plastics are described below.

1 = PET or PETE = Polyethylene Terephalate. Common uses: soft drink bottles, some fruit juices, alcohol beverage bottles.

2. = HDPE = High density polyethylene. Common uses: (clear HDPE) milk jugs, distilled water, large vinegar bottles, grocery bags. (colored HDPE) liquid laundry and dish detergent, fabric softener, motor oil, antifreeze, bleach and lotion.

3. = V = Vinyl/Polyvinyl Chloride. Common uses: vegetable oil bottles, mouthwash, salad dressings.

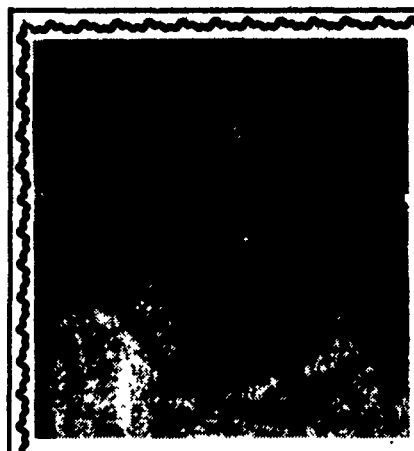
4. = LDPE = Low density polyethylene. Common uses: bags for dry cleaning, bread, produce and trash and for food storage containers.

5. = PP = Polypropylene. Common uses: battery cases, dairy tubs, cereal box liners.

6. = PS = Polystyrene. Common uses: yogurt cups, clear carryout containers, vitamin bottles, fast food, spoons, knives and forks, hot cups, meat and produce trays, egg cartons, clamshell carryout food containers.

7. = Other types of plastics = Plastics labeled with a seven (7) are made from a type other than the six most common types listed above or they can be made from multiple layers of different types of plastics. Common uses: squeezable ketchup bottles, most chip snack bags, juice boxes (individual servings).

While the coding system will make it easier to sort the different types of plastics for recycling, most communities that accept plastics in their recycling program collect PETE (1) in the form of plastic soda bottles and HDPE (2) in the form of milk jugs.



Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Life can get so hectic! We were trying to catch up with our work after being away from home for 10 days. Then, our 17-month-old grandson began to spend his days with us as his mother was in the hospital.

Having a toddler to watch and diaper was not part of my plan for this spring. I had been transplanting some flowers from the farmhouse to our present home. There must be some 20 perennials that have been moved so far.

Our grandson, Bradley, likes to play with a bucket of water as I dig holes for the plants. Our newly seeded lawn had grown quite tall and he helped me rake it after it was finally mowed. He loves to be outside and chase our two cats and four kittens. He is quite husky and big for his age but he obeys us and only occasionally is tempted to do things his way.

The other night his father came for him, as he sleeps in his own crib, and we all saw a big deer in our backyard. It was dusk and it moved cautiously until it came to an open field where it disappeared in the distance.

My Bible Study Group will meet at our home this month. Now that is a reason to do some extra cleaning. And with a husband who works on the farm and drags home bits of hay and shredded newspaper plus a young child who puts his hands all over the big glass doors there is a lot of work to get done.

Baking an apple cake for refreshments will be a pleasure as that is a job that I enjoy doing.

Hausman Fruit Farm

Miriam is in charge of the Fruit Shoppe located on the farm. She also packs holiday gift boxes and fruit baskets for delivery.

"When people taste them, they keep coming back for more," Miriam said of the Holland tomato varieties that they grow.

The 800 tomato plants per greenhouse grows to a height of seven to 8 feet. Each blossom is pollinated by hand by tickling the cluster at least every other day.

Miriam also raises bedding plants in addition to aspargus, peppers, and geraniums. The farm carries its own line of jellies and jams. At first Miriam made them, but now she has someone else make them.

The store is closed Sunday and Monday through the winter, but opens on Monday through Saturday in the middle of May. From August through October, the store is open seven days a week.

"The town is really behind the outdoor market," Keith said. "It's in the middle of town where a former lumberyard that burned down is located. It is open only during the summer months from 7 a.m. to 12 p.m. on a Saturday, but we do very well because the people really support it.

"One of the biggest misconceptions that people have about fruit growing is that we vacation in Florida every winter because we don't have anything to do," Keith said. "Actually orchards require year-round labor. It takes us the entire winter to prune trees, pack fruit, and repair the equipment and we still don't get done."

But Keith isn't complaining. "I love the work. I always did. I like the freedom and openess. I especially like springtime for the weather and the work, but that's when the cash flow is at the lowest, so I guess I should like summer best," Keith said, "that's when the money comes in."

"A lot of orchards are going out of business because expenses are growing every year and receipts are no higher than 10 years ago," he said. "We need to become more and more efficient to make a profit. The most effective way is to sell more retail."

"The state spends a lot of money on advertising and they buy up supermarket space," Keith said. "Area stores mark up my apples 150 percent and if I complain, they say that they'll just buy more apples from Washington state. There isn't much that I can do except to concentrate more on retail at our store and market stands."

The Hausman Fruit Farm and Fruit Shoppe is located at Limeport Pike, R.D. 2, Box 652, Coopersburg, PA 18036, (215) 967-2440.

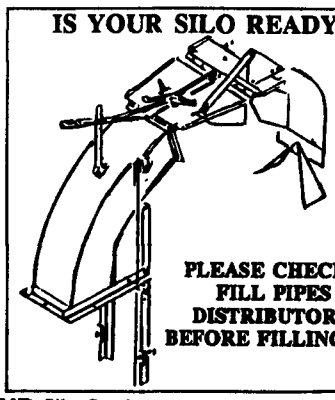
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.
The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Students Should Learn Ways To Prevent Foodborne Illness

ANDY ANDREWS

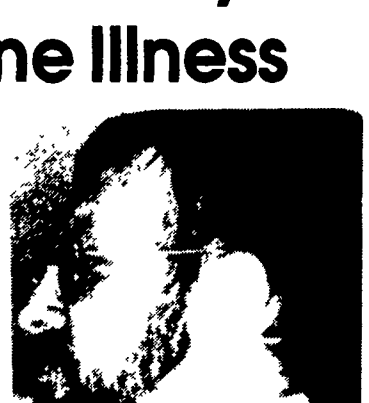
LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — A recent poll indicated that only about half of the American public washes its hands before handling food, including teen-agers. And many teens will, at one time or another, work in the food industry.

The importance of good personal hygiene and the essentials of food safety in schools were emphasized to about 60 home economists at the Lancaster-Lebanon IU 13 at their meeting last week.

Dr. Stephen J. Knabel, assistant professor of food science at Penn State, discussed an array of projects that teachers can use to address the issues of food safety to school-age children. Knabel said that personal hygiene and food safety must be emphasized in the school, "because from what I can tell, people think there is less and less of this taught. Many of these students will eventually go into the food service industry and be out there handling food."

Knabel spoke about the role of bacteria (microorganisms) and their role in the food chain.



Dr. Stephen J. Knabel

Hitchhikers

"Bacteria are like hitchhikers," he said. "They hitchhike from one surface to another. And your hands are the primary method of hitchhiking."

Home economists need to understand the importance of instilling in the students an understanding of microorganisms, the importance of knowing how to maintain good personal hygiene when handling food, the proper heating and cooling techniques for food, and ways students can understand food safety through "hands-on projects."

But first, teachers must understand that microorganisms can be a potential threat. Knowing how they are threating and under what conditions is key.

"Food safety experts realize it is microorganisms that are really the major health problem when it comes to food safety," said Knabel. Consumers tend to think only in terms of "catastrophic" illnesses, or things beyond their control, such as pesticides or food additives that may cause cancer. According to the food safety expert, problems such as microorganisms are those that can be "controlled" by the homemaker.

Rid of risks

But consumers have to understand that it is impossible to get rid of all risks when handling food.

"There is always some risk involved in eating," he said. "We can reduce the risk to a very negligible level, but we can never have zero risk."

Bacteria are everywhere — in the food we eat, in our bodies, in the entire "ecosystem" of the earth. "You're never going to eradicate bacteria from the face of the earth," he said. "We have to control them."

Knabel suggested that the home economics teachers team up with science and math teachers and use projects to study microorganisms and their relationship to food. Through the use of borrowed lab equipment, such as a microscope, students can actually observe bacteria, both good (the kind in yogurt) and bad, or pathogenic bacteria, such as Listeria, Salmonella, and Campylobacter.

Grow logarithmically

Knabel said that bacteria grow "logarithmically," dividing in half or doubling rapidly. By growing this way, a small amount of bacteria can become a large amount in a very short time.

Some projects Knabel suggested for the classroom in order to study bacteria include:

• Place some pure water in a petri dish or test tube. Sprinkle in a little dirt. Oberserve little or no bacteria growth. Take another dish and place in some dried soup mix and dirt. Observe. Next, combine the dirt, the dried soup mix, and water, and watch the buildup of bacteria. This shows that bacteria need food and water to grow.

• Expose some hamburger to oxygen. Watch the buildup of aerobic bacteria (bacteria that need oxygen to grow). Then place olive oil around another batch of burger. Watch the buildup of anaerobic bacteria (bacteria that only grow in the absence of oxygen), including gas and bubbling.

• Study pH through yogurt. A cup of yogurt can contain about 10 billion bacteria per spoonful (lactic acid bacteria). This is a way of teaching children that some bacteria are good. Allow some bacteria to stand and ferment. The pH will drop and, eventually, the students will see the buildup of mold, which thrives under conditions of low pH.

4-H Tractor Club

The 39th annual Franklin County 4-H Tractor Club awards banquet, held recently at the Franklin County Vo-Tech School cafeteria, was attended by more than 180 members, parents, and guests according to Bill Reagan, county agent. The dinner was held to recognize project club winners and to complete the annual winter program that involved 61 members, representing the largest tractor club membership ever enrolled.

The first year group winners were recognized by club leader Ronald Hissong, Mercersburg, with first place honors presented to Philip Mummert, Chambersburg. Second place honors went to John Farrow, St. Thomas and the third place award was presented to Steven Bricker, Chambersburg.

Second year winners were recognized by club leader Roger Dice, Chambersburg, as follows: first place honors went to Matthew Bricker, Chambersburg; second place was presented to Adam Hess, Chambersburg; and third place honors went to Joel Gayman, Shippensburg.

In the third year group, club leader Myron Young, Chambersburg, recognized the following winners: first place went to Luke Zaiger, Waynesboro; second place to Joe Hess, Shady Grove; and third place honors to Sherman Wisler, Waynesboro.

In addition, all third year members, who represent the graduating class, were awarded individual 4-H tractor trophies in recognition of their completion of the three-year program.

Foodborne Illness

• Study temperatures in the "danger zone" by taking milk and observing bacterial growth at different temperatures, including 40 degrees F, another at room temperature (68 degrees F), another at 98 degrees F, and another at 140 degrees F. The experiment will prove that milk kept under 40 degrees F or over 140 degrees F will prevent bacteria from growing. Milk kept at warm temperatures will support very rapid growth of bacteria. (The "danger zone" is the temperatures, from above 40 degrees F to below 140 degrees F, in which foodborne pathogenic bacteria grows. Food should be kept out of that danger zone.)

Steam tables in restaurants are kept at 140 degrees or above to prevent the growth of any bacteria present in the food.

"A major cause of foodborne illness is how temperature is controlled, in terms of cooling, in terms of thawing," said Knabel. "This is where many of the mistakes are made in terms of foodborne illness."

Temperature management

According to the food safety expert, teachers should become more aware of the causes of foodborne illness. Much of it has to do with food temperature mangement.

"The improper cooling and thawing of foods is the number one cause of foodborne illness," he said. Many people wrongly thaw food on a countertop, which can be dangerous since many of the pathogens live on the outside of the meat. So they multiply rapidly.

Bacteria die

Also, bacteria die in gradual steps, not all at once, when food is heated. "When you talk about killing bacteria, it is a time/temperature phenomenon," said Knabel. The higher the temperature, according to Knabel, the faster they die.

Many people make the mistake of not spending enough time cooking food at a high temperature. The heat must be distributed evenly and at a high enough temperature.

Conventional ovens heat evenly slowly while microwaves heat fast and somewhat unevenly. When using microwaves, according to the expert, the food needs a longer standing time at a higher temperature to kill bacteria.

Also, when cooling the food, it's important to understand that the food must be broken down into smaller units. The temperature of the "cold spot," or the location at the deepest part of the meat, must be measured. A large crockpot, if placed in the refrigerator, could take days before the correct temperature in the cold spot is reached. So food must be broken into shallow pans (no more than three inches thick) that can cool more rapidly, according to the food safety expert.

Knabel said about 80 million illnesses and 9,000 deaths occur in the U.S. each year because of foodborne bacteria. Most is due to the mishandling of foods in food service institutions and in the home.

He said students should be better educated about food safety issues to help reduce the problem.

FARM MANAGEMENT

FARMLAND PRESERVATION UPDATE

Alan W. Strock
Multicounty Farm Management Agent

About 82 percent of southcentral Pennsylvanians believe farmland preservation should be given a higher priority in the 1990s, according to a recently completed public opinion survey conducted by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Citizen concern about the loss of agricultural land continues to grow as businesses, beltways, residential developments, and shopping malls invade rural areas.

The survey, conducted by Dr. Stanford Lembeck, associate professor of rural sociology with fellow Penn State rural sociologists Dr. Donald Crider and Dr. Fern Willits, analyzed responses from more than 3,600 Pennsylvanians. They found broad support across the state for farmland preservation. The greatest support came from the capital region, the seven-county area surrounding Harrisburg, that includes Lancaster County and also much of the state's most fertile agricultural land.

Lost Farmland

Between 1982 and 1987, 4,000 Pennsylvania farms were lost, along with 431,000 acres of farmland, according to the 1987 U.S. Census of Agriculture. Also between 1982 and 1987, Lancaster County lost 216 farms and 13,332 acres of farmland.

The 1980's concern over commercial and residential development and suburban sprawl prompted the passage of state legislation designed to encourage farmers to keep land in agricultural production.

On November 3, 1987, by passing a statewide referendum, Pennsylvania residents established a $100 million bond issue "for the purchase of agricultural conservation easements for the preservation of farmland." This program has greatly increased Pennsylvania's farmland preservation efforts.

Conservation Easement Purchase Program

Twenty-eight of the 67 counties have boards that have set up prioritized local needs and wants that conform with state guidelines to purchase easement rights within the framework of state law.

Lancaster and Chester counties have received $8.4 million and $8.5 million, respectively, from the state bond fund. Counties have also contributed to the cost of locally approved programs.

Lancaster and Chester counties have contributed a little more than $3 million and $3.6 million, respectively, to purchase easements since 1988.

Through the easement purchase program in Lancaster County alone, Lancaster County and the Pennsylvania have purchased easements from 38 farms covering roughly 3,500 acres. Lancaster County alone has acquired easements through purchase or gift of 45 farms covering about 3,200 acres.

Permanent Funding

Beginning in July of 1993, the Conservation Easement Purchase program will be permanently funded by a $.02 per pack tax on cigarettes.

Present projections indicate this would yield approximately 15-20 million dollars per year.

Restricted Uses

The farmland preservation program is entirely voluntary. No force is placed on farmers to sell their conservation easements.

If an easement is purchased, restrictions are placed on the deed that allow only agriculture uses. The farmer's land must be in an agriculture security area to qualify for the easement purchase program.

The conservation easement value is determined by subtracting the appraised agricultural value from the appraised fair market value of the property. That means a farm with a conservation easement worth $400,000 could be preserved as farmland forever for $400,000 or less. Actual purchase price may be any value up to 100 percent of the appraised easement value.

Not An Easy Decision

The process of establishing guidelines for most counties was a lengthy process.

Likewise, an individual farmer's decision to enter the program should not be taken lightly.

A farmer must compare current and potential income, expenses and taxes — all in light of their long-term financial plan. The decision should be based on a very careful consideration of personal and family goals.

Farmers must consider estate planning objectives and real estate and income tax consequences, along with numerous other personal factors.

The issues involved in farmland preservation are extremely complex. However, local officials will have to determine the tax impact of less development in their boundaries. The purchase of conservation easements are costly and include complex procedures and ideas.

Support For Farmland Preservation

Although statewide support for farmland preservation is strong, those who give it a high priority are also more likely to think livestock farming and pesticide and fertilizer usage should be restricted near residential areas.

Caponizing Surgeon Must Be Sharp, Ready

Herbert C. Jordan
Assoc. Prof.
Poultry Science
Penn State

Each spring across America, many young farmers plan and perform caponizing surgery on their own cockerel chickens at 8-28 days of age.

I receive a few calls each year when surgery failed to some degree.

Here are tips to keep the surgeon sharp, alert, accurate, and useful throughout the surgery, whether it is caponizing, debeaking, dubbing, or some other surgery. The surgeon must:

- Have adequate rest the night before.
- Be healthy without a cold or flu or any disease that may adversely affect human performance.
- Normal sight of eye is essential, so wear corrective lenses if needed and have them clean and fitted with the proper perscription. If you need no glasses, keep eyes clear and clean. Do not caponize if you have a depth perception problem or are color blind.
- Use natural light or incandescent light — do not use pulsating fluorescent lights. Any light with a fluctuation is inadequate.
- Consume no alcohol or other drugs of any kind 48 hours or more before you perform surgery.
- Feel well — do not perform surgery if you feel lack of energy, dizzy, tired, or weak. Surgeons must be supple, quick, and strong, and endure more stress in an hour than most people encounter in a day. Plan and prepare yourself for it.
- Major surgery on several hundred birds a day is only for the competent, trained, experienced, capable, knowledgeable, wise, and above-average human in self-discipline.
- Eat a balanced meal, with protein, 1-2 hours before surgery begins and eat again midmorning if energy begins to fail. Keep body fluids normal.
- Caponize with compassion, accuracy, and speed, and admit when you are wrong. Capable surgeons have no choice — they must be right all the time or know how to recover the patient if an accident or error happens.
- If a surgeon is not sure, do not perform surgery. Ask for help. In Pennsylvania, a few caponizing schools or teams are available to help you to learn. Contact your nearest county agricultural agent.

MANAGEMENT

favored such restrictions, suggesting that there's some ambivalence as to whether people desire working farms or pastoral vistas.

Policy makers and citizens need to make their values clear on these and other issues as they consider the costs and benefits of local farmland preservation activities.

Keep Farming Profitable

Swine Management News

Dr. Richard Barczewski
Extension Agent
U. Of Delaware

It's hard to believe that the Pork Promotion, Research and Consumer Information Act which established the checkoff was passed seven years ago.

Since 1985, much has happened to enhance the image of your product with consumers.

Just this morning, I received a copy of the 1991 annual report of the National Pork Board. I'd like to share some of that report with you here.

Gross revenues for 1991 were $30.5 million, with a total spending of $34 million. The $3.5-million deficit was the result of reserves acquired in 1990. Discretionary funds spent in 1991 included $11.8 million for advertising, $3.3 million for retail merchandising, $3.1 million for production technologies, $2.3 million for food service, $2.1 million for consumer information, $1.2 million for foreign market development, $1.1 million for nutrition and product research, $1 million for consumer affairs, and $0.5 million for pork education.

Looking at the funds another way, 63 percent were spent on promotion, 20 percent on consumer information, and 17 percent on research. Additionally, 21 percent of the total checkoff receipts were returned to states for their own use in promotion, consumer information, and research. Highlights for 1991 include the following:

- 82 percent of consumers in targeted markets recalled the "Pork — The Other White Meat" message.
- "Pork — The Other White Meat" commercials reached 60 percent of U.S. consumers.
- Retail promotions generated 40-75 percent increases in boneless pork sales.
- Pork industry merchandisers held 30 retail seminars on increasing boneless pork sales.
- The 31-percent-leaner ad captured the attention of 48,000 dietitians and 108,000 physicians.
- Advertisement and information materials improved physicians' attitudes toward pork in the diet.

First of all, $34 million dollars is a lot of money. For that amount you'd expect to have a major impact, but looking through the list of accomplishments for 1991, it seems much more was achieved than many would have expected.

We live in interesting times. Agricultural producers can no longer expect to hold onto their markets without a concerted and organized effort.

This past December, the checkoff rate was increased to 35 cents per $100 of hogs sold, up from 25 cents per $100. For that reason, it is important that hog producers realize the impact that their money is having.

Is the checkoff program worthwhile? Based on the accomplishments listed above, it would seem so. Producers, even the original skeptics, have begun to recognize market impact and changes in consumer attitudes takes time. Maybe the time has come for hog producers. The benefits will be with us for a long time.

The New Holland Model 580 baler from Ford New Holland features a 16 x 18 inch bale chamber and 80-inch pickup. An exclusive rotary feed design and higher torque slip clutch add capacity and reliability for commercial hay growers and custom operators.

75-Inch Pickup On Square Baler

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new New Holland Model 580 baler from Ford New Holland features a 16 x 18 inch bale chamber, 75-inch pickup (over 80 inches with flare), exclusive rotary feed system, and a higher slip clutch capacity to transmit more tractor torque.

"The design provides additional baling capacity and more reliability than the well-accepted Model 426 it supersedes," said Ford New Holland Product Manager Jim Payton.

"Farmers who tested the new '580' report they can usually bale a gear faster because the baler gets the hay off the field and into the bale so much easier. They like the improved bale shape and appearance, too," Payton said.

The increased capacity is the result of the rotary feed system and the additional power that can be transmitted to the baler by the 3-joint Category VI PTO with power pivot and the extra large 3-disc clutch. The new clutch transmits 25 percent more torque. This higher torque, coupled with a shorter crank, increases density capability.

"The improved bale appearance is the result of a combination of design improvements," Payton said. "A plunger guide rail that grooved the left side of the bale has been eliminated. On the right side, the location of the bale chamber hay dogs and knife has been changed to reduce 'shingling.' Coupled with the superior bale case fill due to the '580' rotary feed system, the new baler consistently turns out square, dense, uniform bales that stack and ship better. This feature is important to commercial hay growers and custom operators."

"Knotters are gear driven and the hard bill hook chrome plating has been increased to further extend reliability. Users can expect to bale thousands of bales without a miss," Payton said.

The "580" bale chamber floor is replaceable. Convenience options include a light kit for night-time baling, hydraulic tongue swing and hydraulic pickup lift. A needle slot baffle kit, bale case extension, and safety tow chain are also available.

Stanley Tools Video Uses Central Pa. Sites

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Manufacturing Innovation Through Technology, a new corporate video presentation for Stanley Tools, illustrates advanced automated processes used in the assembly and packaging of Stanley's tape rule product lines.

The presentation was produced by WaterMark Video Inc., of Palmyra, who chose central Pennsylvania actors and locations to accompany technical sequences shot at Stanley's New Britain, Conn., manufacturing facility.

The video opens with a point-of-purchase scenario staged at Umberger's of Fontana, a hardware store and Stanley Tools dealer in Lebanon County. Other scenes include the construction of "Shaker" furniture with Dan Backenstose of Schaefferstown, and woodworking by students at SUN Vo-tech, New Berlin.

According to Terry Christensen, director of Stanley Tools' Advanced Manufacturing Division, "Videos like this one play an important part in technology transfer and communication between various divisions of our company." The video presentation will be distributed to Stanley manufacturing sites across the United States and around the world.

Synchro Shuttle Transmission On New Tractors

DES MOINES, Iowa — Massey Ferguson continues its introduction of the new generation of 1100 Series tractors with the release of the MF 1180 (46 PTO hp) and MF 1190 (52 PTO hp) four-wheel-drive models.

Massey Ferguson 1100 Series models introduced in 1991 are the MF 1140 (26 PTO hp), the MF 1145 (31 PTO hp), and the MF 1160 (37 PTO hp).

Standard features for the MF 1180 and MF 1190 include a 169 cubic inch direct injection 4-cylinder diesel engine and a synchro shuttle transmission that shifts between forward and reverse using a single lever on the left side of the steering column.

The shuttle transmission is coupled with a partially synchronized 16 forward and 16 reverse speed transmission. The third and fourth gears of the main transmission are equipped with a synchromesh unit to allow shifting from second-to third and third to fourth in each of the four ranges while the tractor is moving.

Other standard features include a 55-degree, bevel-gear-driven, heavy duty front axle that transfers full power to the wheels at all steering angles; a spacious, full flat deck that helps the operator stay comfortable during long hours of work; a 3-position tilt steering column that keeps controls within easy reach; a large, spring suspension seat that adjusts fore and aft as well as adjusting for the weight of the operator; and an electro hydraulic actuated independent PTO. The PTO is engaged by simply pushing a button on the steering column.

The front grille and side panels on both tractors are easily removed to reach the engine, engine accessories, and battery for easy servicing. A vertical exhaust is easily converted to horizontal on the MF 1180 by adding the exhaust pipe out the side.

The high performance Quick-Attach MF 232 loader mounts on both the MF 1180 and MF 1190 tractors for added versatility.

Masts Excel In Corn Yield Contest

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Yields of 198.44 and 177.02 bushels per acre recently gave Paul and Ernest Mast first place in the no-till irrigated and second place in the irrigated divisions of the 1991 National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) National Corn Yield Contest in Pennsylvania.

The father and son team took the honors with entries of Pioneer hybrids 3241 and 3140. Paul's first place entry was planted May 1, 1991 and son Ernest's entry May 4 in 30-inch rows at a planting rate of 29,900 seeds per acre. The first place entry was fertilized with approximately 172 pounds of nitrogen, 20 pounds of phosphate, and 20 pounds of potash per acre. The second place entry received approximately 196 pounds of nitrogen, 32 pounds of phosphate, and 32 pounds of potash per acre.

The field that produced the first place entry had been planted to soybeans in 1990, while Ernest's second place entry came from a field that had been planted to potatoes a year ago. Both crops were planted with a John Deere 7000 planter. They were harvested October 15, 1991 at 21.9 percent and 23.9 percent moisture levels, respectively.

The Masts applied Extrazine preemergence at 3 quarts and Gramoxone preemergence at 1 pint per acre to control weeds in the first-place entry. They used a broadcast application of Pounce to control insects. The second place entry received Extrazine preemergence at 3 quarts and Banvel postemergence at .33 pints per acre to control weeds. An application of 1.50 pints of Lorsban and an application of Ambush were used to control insects.

Both crops were watered with sprinkle irrigation.

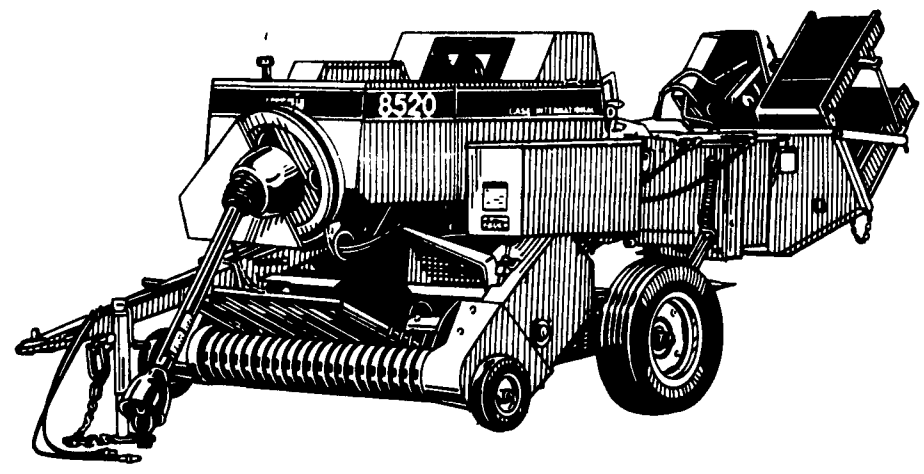
"Her" Choice



If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake...leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Radial Tire Cuts Vibration, Maintains Traction

AKRON, Ohio — Engineers at Goodyear say they took "a whole lotta shakin'" out of tires for utility and mid-size farm tractors when they designed the company's patented new DT710 radial rear farm tire.

Body-jarring vibration in utility tractors previously had been a major industry problem, according to Goodyear's chief engineer for farm tires, Loren Lopp.

"The opposite forces that govern traction and smooth ride were presenting a formidable challenge," said Lopp. "You couldn't get a smooth ride with a design for adequate traction, and smoothing the ride out caused slippage."

Lopp and his engineering team utilized computer design and finite element analysis in developing a tire that allows utility and mid-size farm tractors to enter a new dimension in versatility by cutting vibration and maintaining traction.

The result is a product so unusual that features of its design are patented, and the patent numbers are displayed on the sidewall of the tire.

"Earlier efforts by manufacturers to stop vibration have resulted in loss of traction because the conventional fix was to scale down the tire tread lugs," Lopp said. "Or, when designers tried to improve traction by making tread elements larger, over-the-road rides had become quite uncomfortable."

Those rides, Lopp said, were prompting the operators to use the vehicles only for minimal chores and also were causing premature failure in the tractors.

Lopp said the state-of-the-science design borrows nothing from earlier generations of farm tires.

"The casing features a reduced stress construction to assure long-term durability, low air-pressure performance and the capability of driving tractors over the road at higher speeds with a smooth ride," Lopp said.

Among DT710 features developed at Goodyear's Technical Center is the center element tread design, which is unique for general farm applications, Lopp said.

Goodyear's designers identified it as a key in reconciling the "jarring relationship between vibration and traction," Lopp said. "It offers several other performance benefits unobtainable with conventional lugged patterns."

Lopp explained that the new center element concept improves ride and handling by putting a large lug surface area in the working center of the tread. And the large number of center elements and lugs result in a 60 percent increase in leading-edge zones of the lugs over conventional farm tires, a factor which sharply improves traction.

"The DT710 makes a small tractor ride and perform like a big tractor," Lopp said. "There's been nothing in this industry to compare to this tire."

While most tires of the size needed by utility and mid-size tractors are bias-ply tires, the DT710 is a radial, bringing all the advantages of radial tire construction to the farmer, Lopp said. "You get improved fuel economy, cooler operating temperatures for longer durability, better pulling power with more traction, and an end to the vibration," he said.

The tire is also highly effective in self-cleaning, said Lopp. "The tread is designed to discharge compacted soil quickly," he said, "avoiding the clogged treads that can turn farm tires into slippery racing slicks under muddy conditions."

Goodyear's new and patented DT710 farm tire expands the usefulness of utility and mid-size tractors by overcoming vehicle vibration. Tractors equipped with the DT710 can perform a broader variety of chores and projects with large tractor performance, plus improved fuel economy and traction. Here, farmers check out the DT710's lug bolts and wheel.

Fair Brochure

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) announces that a listing of all the agricultural fairs within the state is available in a colorful brochure.

Each fair is listed by county, the fair name, the location, a contact person, and the date for the 1992 event. For easier reference, the state is divided into four regions.

County fairs, the showplace of Pennsylvania agriculture, attract millions during their June through October season. Nearly every county in Pennsylvania has at least one agricultural fair, and many have more than one. A total of 114 events are held yearly.

Agribusiness and agriculture is Pennsylvania's number one industry. Farming and related agribusiness employ 1.2 million Pennsylvanians each year, and contribute approximately $30 billion in economic activity to Pennsylvania. The agricultural fairs are the showplace of this monumental industry.

For a free copy of the brochure, entitled "Have We Got a Fair For You," contact Beverly Snyder, Secretary, PSACF, P.O. Box 5, New Tripoli, PA 18066.

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

The Eby Wrangler...

★ Better Looking

★ Better Built

★ Better Value

The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications

- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

AN IMPORTANT REMINDER ABOUT RESPIRABLE DUST

Sam Steel
Project Associate
Ag & Bio
Engineering Dept.

Poultry house dust has the potential for creating health problems among farmers.

It's not just any dust that farmers should be concerned about — it's the invisible dust particles known as respirable dust.

Respirable dust particles are less than 5 microns in diameter and are easily inhaled into the lungs, where they may cause hypersensitive reactions among poultry workers.

All inhaled dust is potentially dangerous to poultry farmers. It can cause an abrasive irritation to the inside of the lungs, or a condition known as "pneumonconiosis."

As additional dust is inhaled, irritating an already severe condition, the lung's efficiency level is reduced. This becomes a chronic or long-term disability which will adversely affect an individual's energy and exertion levels.

In other words, farmers of all ages find that they do not have the ability to accomplish farm tasks which require an increased level of strength and endurance.

Studies conducted with poultry farmers shown that many have excessive dust inhalation symptoms, including burning eyes, runny nose, scratchy throat, abnormal production of sputum and phlegm, and excessive coughing. When researchers expanded their observations, it was apparent that more serious side-effects may occur from prolonged dust inhalation, especially dusts containing unknown organisms and chemicals.

One recent study in the midwest indicated that aerosols and ammonia may combine in confined animal housing and, when inhaled, may be deposited in the lungs.

The human body does have an efficient filtration system for keeping toxic and potentially dangerous materials out. Nose hair, along with the moist linings inside the nose, catch larger dust particles before they reach the throat and upper respiratory tract. Dust which gets by this filter can still be entrapped by hairlike cilia inside bronchial tubes above the lungs.

Unfortunately, large volumes of air contaminated with smaller dust particles still bypass this filtration system and reach the very absorptive inner linings of the lungs.

It has been estimated by Dr. Ron Jester of the University of Delaware that more than tons (77,000 cubic feet) of air is breathed into a farmer's lungs each year. This represents a weight greater than a person eats or drinks during the same period. If this quantity of air is contaminated with respirable dust, such as that found in poultry houses, then a dangerous level is being inhaled.

Even if you have not experienced symptoms of respirable dust inhalation, personal protective equipment should always be used when working in poultry houses. Obviously, a properly fitted and maintained respirator should be used. Farmers with beards and those who wear glasses should be extra careful to ensure a proper fit. However, if you have extenuating medical circumstances such as heart and/or lung problems, including allergies, asthma, or high blood pressure, check with your doctor to ascertain whether you can wear a respirator.

Although it is easy to forget about respirator maintenance, don't take chances with your livelihood by ignoring the use of correct filter canisters and proper storage procedures. Your family and our nation's agricultural community need farmers who maintain a high level of awareness for their individual health.

Trusts Preserve Natural Landscape

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 3,000 acres of wetlands, farms, and forests in the U.S. are sold for redevelopment each day. But since the late 1800s, land trusts have been working to permanently protect these and other valuable lands.

Land trusts, or land conservancies, are nonprofit organizations that preserve land to benefit the environment and the public. The nearly 900 regional, statewide, and national land trusts in the U.S. have protected more than 2.7 million acres.

Farms, forests, wetlands, watersheds, urban gardens, historical buildings, and other kinds of property can be protected from development through different arrangements with land trust organizations.

"Land trusts range from small, local groups that protect only a few acres to large national organizations like the Nature Conservancy, which manages millions of acres and employs large staffs of professionals," said Steven Thorne, Maurice K. Goddard professor of forestry and environmental resources in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Perhaps the organizations' biggest strength is that they can be designed to meet the needs of particular communities or areas."

Property owners can arrange with a land trust to protect their land without selling it. One of the most effective and flexible ways to do this is through a conservation easement.

"In a conservation easement, the landowner and land trust enter into a legal agreement permanently restricting development of the property," said Thorne. "The land stays in private ownership, and the organization sees that development restrictions are carried out even if ownership changes."

Another way to protect land is through a life estate. With this arrangement, a landowner sells or donates land but retains the right to live on it throughout his or her lifetime. When the landowner dies, the land trust remains permanent owner of the property.

Landowners who no longer wish to live on their property can donate or will it outright. Many land trusts also buy property, sometimes for less than market value. This arrangement, called a bargain sale, stretches the organizations' land acquisition budget and provides tax advantages for the seller.

"Sometimes an owner would like his or her land to go to a land trust organization but can't afford to donate it or sell it at bargain price," said Thorne. "In this case, the owner can work with the land trust to arrange for part of the property to be developed, to finance conservation of the rest. Development often can be done so that the land is harmed as little as possible."

If you decide to conserve property in cooperation with a land trust, the organization will help you obtain professional assistance in estate planning, reviewing tax and conservation laws, and environmental and land planning.

Because an arrangement with a land trust is legally binding, you can be reasonably sure that the land will be preserved indefinitely, even if the land no longer meets the organization's conservation requirements.

There are more than 40 land trust organizations in the state, including the Northcentral Pennsylvania Conservancy, the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, the Pennypack Watershed Association in southeastern Pennsylvania, and the West Branch Conservancy in central Pennsylvania.

To find out more about land trusts and to locate one near you, call or write The Land Trust Alliance, Suite 410, 900 17th St., NW, Washington, DC 20006, (202) 785-1410.

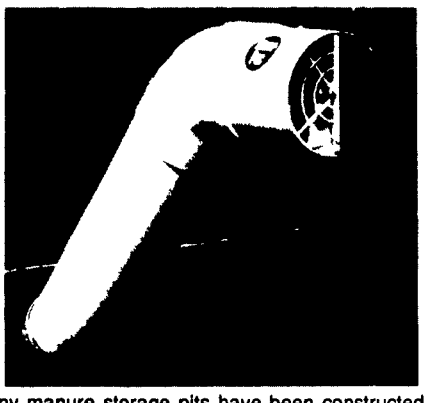
PUMP OUT PIT FAN



Many manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful, caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals

Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO^2. Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death.

Mulch Master Undergoes Field Trials

MOLINE, Ill. — This spring, farmers in several parts of the country will have the opportunity to see or participate in final field tests of John Deere's innovative 550 Mulch Master.

"Although it won't be available for sale until fall, this dramatically different secondary tillage tool is creating considerable interest and anticipation," said Tom Bueker, tillage product manager at the John Deere Des Moines Works.

"Farmers with highly erodible land (HEL) who are considering how they can achieve the residue percentages called for in their compliance plans will want to closely examine the Mulch Master," said Bueker. "Likewise, those farmers who use preplant-incorporated herbicides and those who seek a machine with a broader range of capabilities to improve efficiency and productivity will also want a closer look at this machine."

Two of the most impressive performance advantages of the Mulch Master are its ability to prepare a final seedbed with no appreciable net loss of residue and to thoroughly incorporate chemicals in one pass.

What's noticeably different about the Mulch Master design is the patented incorporator wheels at the rear of the machine. The wheels are spaced on 10-inch centers in two gangs running at opposing 30-degree angles. This arrangement gives an effective 5-inch spacing between wheels for complete surface coverage and thorough chemical incorporation. The two gangs produce an aggressive churning action that moves chemicals through residue and into the seedbed.

The incorporator wheels provide several performance advantages. They lift residue to the surface, incorporate chemicals, prepare the final seedbed, and kill weeds by removing soil from the roots. The wheels are made of nodular iron for strength and durability. They are mounted in pairs on spring-loaded supports to follow terrain for even incorporation. The independent action of the supports effectively eliminates plugging.

The front of the Mulch Master features three ranks of 24-inch low-crown sweeps mounted on 20-inch centers for highly effective soil and residue flow. An underframe clearance of 28 inches also contributes to the Mulch Master's considerable capacity to handle heavy residue. The low-crown sweeps' lift-and-return action loosens the soil and levels out ridges to provide moist soil for herbicides. This action also leaves maximum residue on the surface. The 4-inch sweep-to-sweep overcut takes out weeds completely.

The Mulch Master is designed to normally operate at a 2 to 4-inch depth. Chemical applicator nozzles are mounted immediately ahead of the incorporator wheels to place chemicals on the level, moist surface produced by the sweeps. Bueker points out that the machine does not have to run five inches deep to properly incorporate chemicals in the 2.5 to 3-inch zone because the incorporator wheels will thoroughly mix chemicals throughout their full range of operating depth.

Speed is another Mulch Master advantage. The recommended operating speed is 7 mph, with an effective range of 6 to 8.5 mph. Unlike other types of tillage tools, speed is not a limiting factor. In fact, Bueker said the performance of the incorporator wheels continues to improve as speed increases. The Mulch Master's faster field speeds coupled with fewer spring tillage passes to prepare a seedbed and incorporate chemicals provide significant savings in time and money.

Deere plans to offer the Mulch Master in six configurations: 12'8" and 16' rigid models, and four flexible folding sizes of 19'2", 22'6", 25'10", and 32'6". Power requirements for the Mulch Master range from 8 to 10.5 hp per foot.

"The 550 Mulch Master will complement our already extensive line of tillage equipment for meeting the needs of farmers whose practices include conventional till, no-till, and all the options in between," said Bueker.

The John Deere 550 Mulch Master is an innovative secondary tillage tool that is designed to prepare a seedbed with no appreciable net loss of residue and thoroughly incorporate chemicals in one pass. The performance capabilities of the Mulch Master make it appealing to farmers with HEL acres and those who use preplant-incorporated herbicides. The Mulch Master is also designed for farmers who are looking for a machine with broad-range capabilities to improve efficiency and productivity.

Dress For Success When Spraying Pesticides

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — With the onset of spring, many homeowners will be attempting to control a new population of pesky weeds.

"Controlling lawn and garden weeds usually is done by pulling or snipping, or by using chemical weed killers called herbicides," said Sam Steel, senior project associate in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and director of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council.

"If you use herbicides, make sure you wear appropriate personal protective equipment," Steel said. "Many agricultural pesticides can cause severe illness and even death if misused. Less toxic home and garden pesticides still must be handled, applied, and stored with care."

Steel offers the following guidelines when dressing for a weed-killing job:

- Wear a long-sleeved shirt to keep chemicals from contacting your skin. Forearms are a prime area of pesticide absorption into the body.
- Wear long pants to keep chemicals from contacting your legs.
- Wear rubber boots instead of leather or fabric shoes, which can absorb pesticides and hold them next to your skin.
- Use unlined rubber, latex, neoprene, or nitrile gloves. Never use leather or cloth.
- Wear a broad-brimmed hat to keep spray from contacting your hair, scalp, or the back of your neck.
- Use safety goggles to protect your eyes against splashing or drift.
- Thoroughly wash all personal protective equipment with hot water and heavy duty detergent. Rinse the equipment and store it in a pesticide-free location.

Additional information on personal protective equipment and pesticide safety is available from the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-7710.

Try This 4-H Poultry Project Using Turkeys

HerbertC. Jordan
Assoc. Prof.
Poultry Science
Penn State

Can living space and time possibly compensate for a well-balanced ration after 4 weeks of age in large white meat turkeys in a small, confined flock?

In late November of 1990, two day-old hens and two day-old tom poults were started in a cage to collect manure. All birds were given less than 2 square feet of floor space per bird from day old until four weeks of age.

During this time, they were fed only a starter ration. Granite grit was fed after 12 days of age and fresh water in a five gallon waterer every one to three days.

From four to 16 weeks of age, floor space was increased from less than two square feet per bird to greater than four square feet per bird at 16 weeks of age. During this time, a complete grower diet was mixed half and half with whole oats and fed free choice.

Granite grit was fed once every two weeks at the rate of 2 pounds per feeding. A vitamin, mineral, and electrolyte (VME) was given at ½ strength in the water for three days a week. When handled during this time, all birds seemed trim with no fat on them.

This was done because some consumers like a lean turkey. No health problems were encountered from four to 16 weeks of age.

From 16 to 23 weeks of age, birds were given greater than eight square feet of floor space per bird and fed only whole Tyler wheat, free choice. Granite grit and VME were continued at the same level to 23 weeks of age.

No health problems were noticed to age of slaughter at 23 weeks; however, when liquid droppings started at 20 weeks of age, 1 pound of starter turkey feed with a coccidiostat was fed to each bird. All four birds lived and weighed a cumulative total live weight of 102.5 pounds after fasting 14 hours off feed. Total feed fed was 50 pounds of starter, 150 pounds of grower, 100 pounds of whole oats, and 1-½ cubic feet of whole wheat or about 400 pounds of total feed. A cumulative total of 87.2 pounds of dressed ready to cook (RTC) weight, with giblets, was produced.

The "good" news is that all birds lived and had normal giblets with nothing condemned. No excess fat appeared in or on any bird and no breast blisters or buttons. The "bad" news is all turkey skin was white, little to no fat was seen under skin, no dimple appeared on the breasts, and pin feathers were present.

Some commercial turkey growers believe a high fiber diet (like oats) improves overall bird health, makes a skin more firm to withstand loading and machine processing, reduces ugly soft fat under skin, improves gut health, and makes droppings more normal and easy to dry and handle. A veterinarian once said he can open the gut of a bird and tell by the gut lining if it is on oats.

Any 4-H member with an 8 foot x 8 foot pen could repeat this turkey project. 4-H or FFA poultry growers must count the cost of growing turkeys over a longer time using grain that is less costly than crumbles or a mixed feed.

Soybean Association Honors Young Farmer

BORDENTOWN, N.J. — Lawrence Durr has been recognized by the Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association and American Soybean Association as winner of this year's DuPont Young Leader Award.

This is the ninth year ASA and DuPont have recognized outstanding young agricultural leaders in 26 soybean-producing states throughout the country. Consideration for the award hinges on the farmer using his or her leadership skills to lend direction to the U.S. soybean industry.

Durr is partner in a family farming corporation producing soybeans, corn, and wheat. He is involved in 1,000 to 1,500 acres annually of custom harvesting as well as contracting with a food processor to dispose of vegetative material and organic matter. Durr continually tests the soil to be sure he is maintaining appropriate levels of inputs, and has installed an energy-saving corn drier. Durr forward contracts most of his beans depending on price and stores the rest.

Durr says farmers must make their non-farm neighbors aware of their concerns. When communities truly understand the farmer's position, he said they can become some of farming's staunchest allies.

All Young Leader award winners receive an expense-paid trip for two to the 1992 Soybean Expo in Houston July 24-27. The trip is courtesy of DuPont, makers of Classic, Gemini, Lexone, Lorox, Canopy, Preview and other soybean herbicides. The company will also bring this year's Young Leaders to a leadershp conference in December at its world headquarters in Delaware.

Pesticide Users More Concerned About Safety

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Surveys conducted at recent pesticide training conferences indicate that certified pesticide applicators in Pennsylvania are growing more concerned about using agricultural chemicals safely, said a safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The Agricultural Chemical Safety Compliance Conferences, held in Gettysburg, Butler, and Kennett Square during February and March, were attended by 451 pesticide applicators. Each participant was eligible for at least six pesticide update credits, necessary to maintain a pesticide applicator license.

Participants were asked about their pesticide safety attitudes and practices, including whether they would have attended the meetings if no pesticide certification credits were offered.

"More than 60 percent of the respondents said they would have attended the safety conferences even without the credits," said Sam Steel, senior research associate in agricultural and biological engineering and director of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, which sponsored the conferences.

"This is a tremendous change from 20 years ago, when certification was first mandated," said Steel. "Then, applicators came to conferences because they had no choice. Now they come because they are concerned about using chemicals safely."

When asked about their knowledge of pesticide labels, only 4 percent of conference attendees believed that their understanding level was deficient.

"That's good news," Steel said. "However, a question on recognizing pesticide poisoning symptoms did raise concern. Almost one-third of the respondents acknowledged that they may have difficulty recognizing poisoning symptoms. If something happens in the field, applicators need to identify symptoms quickly. It could mean the difference between life or death."

Steel and conference evaluator Dr. Joe Miller, associate professor of health education at Penn State, also asked conference participants about their use of personal protective equipment.

"Although 53 percent reported that they 'always' use some form of protective gear, another 40 percent said they use it 'sometimes' or 'never,'" Steel said. "That's too high. This response shows that greater emphasis should be placed on extension education and private sector initiatives on personal protective equipment use, storage, and maintenance."

The Agricultural Chemical Safety Compliance Conferences were cosponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, and Agway, Inc.

Information on pesticide safety and future training sessions is available from the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-7710.

Foreigners Own 14.8 Million Acres Of U.S. Land

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Foreign investors reported owning 14.8 million acres of privately owned U.S. agricultural land as of December 31, 1991 — slightly more than 1 percent, or 419,474 acres more than a year ago, according to a recent report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The report indicates that approximately 53 percent of the reported foreign holdings is actually land owned by U.S. firms. The law requires them to register their landholdings as foreign if 10 percent of the foreign-held land is owned by investors not affiliated with U.S. firms, the USDA report said.

Because of the corporate holdings, agriculture officials said an increase in foreign ownership from one year to another does not necessarily represent land newly acquired by foreigners. Nor do the numbers necessarily represent ownership exclusively by foreigners.

According to the report, a U.S. firm's landholdings can show up as foreign-owned one year, but not another, as the firm's stock passes in and out of foreign hands. The land, however, is still owned by the same entity as before.

Of the foreign-owned acreage reported, 49 percent was in forest land, 17 percent in cropland, 31 percent in pasture and other agricultural land, and 3 percent in uncultivated agricultural land.

Corporations reported owning 73 percent of all foreign-held acreage; partnerships, 19 percent; and individuals, 6 percent. The remaining 2 percent is held by estates, trusts, associations, institutions, and others. According to the USDA report, 94 percent of the foreign-owned acreage will remain in agricultural production.

WINCO PTO GENERATORS

ENERGX Corporation, the world's largest PTO generator manufacturer, designs Winco PTO units from the ground up for farm standby power. Built to handle motor loads for the duration of the power outage, and rated for continuous duty operation.

Big motors in your feed room groan to a halt. Vent fans, milk coolers stop. There are no lights, no heating, and no power in the house. For how long? Nobody knows! But with a Winco PTO generator, your farm will be back in business in minutes.

Winco PTO generators are available in sizes from 8KW to 75KW continuous duty. The Maxi-Watt® field coil windings provide extra capacity to restart a big farm at the busiest time of the day

Winco PTO units will run a combination motor load of up to 1 HP per KW.

FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.'

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

...OPERATION

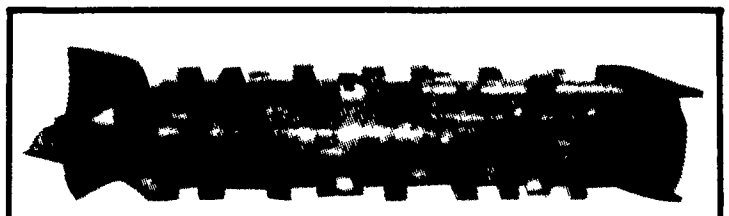
THE AXIAL FLOW SYSTEM PUTS CLEAN, QUALITY GRAIN IN THE TANK...

The Case International XPE Axial-flow Combines feature a single, in-line mounted rotor that gets multiple chances to gently thresh your crop, and then separate it from straw, stalks, pods, and trash. So more of the crop gets harvested, with less damage.



THE ROTOR GENTLY THRESHES SEPARATES AND FEEDS THE CROP FOR EXTRAORDINARY RESULTS IN THE TANK.

Threshing and separating in a conventional combine takes as many as 16 moving parts. But threshing and separating in the Axial-Flow Combine utilizes just one moving part-- the rotor. It simply does a better job.

Hoober's professional combine servicemen have 15 years experience setting axial flow combines in a large variety of crops in most all types of field and weather conditions. When it comes to the KNOW-HOW of making the Axial-Flow combine perform, Hoober men know how.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

- ★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
- ★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
- ★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown taht 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

When it comes to harvesting, you can't beat the heavy-duty performance that's built into the New Holland Model 790 forage harvester. Performance starts at the cutterhead. The 19 11/16-inch wide, 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop that's just right for most silage feeding operations. And an electric clutch gives instant response and positive control on the reversing gearbox. The Model 790 is available with either a 540-rpm or a 1000-rpm PTO drive.

Stop in today and trade for the performance leader in harvesters—the "790" from Ford New Holland.

Measure The Performance

Rod, Bill and Tim Bruss, RD 1 Julian, PA and Rob Hinton, Purina Dairy Specialist

Rod and Tim have been working with their local Purina dealer, Warriors Mark Feed Center, since the spring of 1990. At that time their cows were averaging 57 lbs/cow.* After 2 years on Purina, their RHA is 21,527 lbs. of milk on 32 cows, of which 22 are first calf heifers.

"We like the Purina program because of the convenience. We don't have to spend time weighing and mixing a lot of ingredients. Purina can give us a high quality, palatable concentrate that balances our forage program while at the same time is easy to work with. We are also pleased with the nutritional service provided by our local Purina dairy specialist."

Rod and Tim feed a one-group TMR consisting of haylage, dry hay, dry shelled corn, and Purina Maxi-Tech 32FF. Currently the cows are averaging 72 lbs/cow with a 3.6% BF and a 3.1% Protein. "Considering the poor quality forages we've had to work with this year, we feel cow performance has been super."

* The herd had not been on DHIA long enough to have a RHA

Jim and Tom Wakefield RD #4 Bedford, PA

"Since starting on Purina in July 1989 our cows have increased 5306 lbs. of milk in Rolling Herd Average to 20746 in March of '92. Since starting on Purina Ultimate EXT in November of '90 our cows are peaking higher and persisting longer than we thought possible. Looking at 6 of our better cows and heifers shows just how well they are holding production."

	Month 1	2	3	4	5	6
Average Daily Production for 6 cows	109	119	111	106	95	84
Average Daily Production For 6 Heifers	81	84	85	85	79	74

100 Cows

Jim and Tom feed a one-group TMR (60#) consisting of corn silage as the primary forage along with a small amount of alfalfa pellets and dry hay. In addition feeds dry shelled corn, Purina Ultimate EXT and soybean meal. Top-dresses high cows through a complete feeder with dry shelled corn and Ultimate EXT.
